KRAKOW CAPTURED BY NAZIS; BRITISH REPULSE AIR ATTACK

Nazi Bombers Routed By Land And Air Forces

London Stays In Shelters for Two Hours As Sirens Sound Alarm; Invaders Flee After Curtain of Fire Blocks Path to Chatham, Important Navy Center.

By WEBB MILLER, United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON—Nazi warplanes struck at England today but turned back before a blast of anti-aircraft fire and an aerial counter-attack by Royal Air Force fighting planes.

The ministry of information announced that the "enemy aircraft . . . did not penetrate our defenses at any point and no damage has been reported."

The air raid alarm sent Londoners and thousands of others scurrying underground at 6:42 a. m. As they ran for shelter the people could see the silver tubes of London's balloon barrage defenses hanging against a blue, windless sky.

Then gunfire broke out toward the east and, unofficial reports from near the Chatham naval dockyards said, a fleet of Nazi planes heading for the naval center was met by a curtain of anti-aircraft fire that forced them to turn back.

The air raid alarm sounded for south end, at the mouth of the Thames river opposite Chatham, at 6:40 a. m. (12:40 a. m. EST) but apparently no enemy raiders were able to cross the Thames.

20 Miles From London.

The attacking planes appeared to have been headed for Chatham, which lies about 30 miles east of London on the south bank of the Thames. Presumably the enemy craft crossed a short stretch of the North sea from the direction of Belgium or Holland.

Gunfire and heavy earth shocks also were reported from the east and west of London, but no German planes could be seen from the center of the city where wailing sirens warned the population of danger.

Although the air raid alarm continued in effect until 9:02 a. m. (3:02 a. m. EST), many people came out of the underground shelters to stand on street corners and scan the sky for planes that did not come.

War on Submarines.

Meanwhile, the government started a naval and air war against Nazi submarines in the North sea, the English Channel and along the Atlantic coast. The ministry of information announced several attacks on U-boats and said that official silence did not mean the attacks had failed. The radio announced that the Royal air force had attacked several submarines.

Another radio announcement of news dispatches reported a heavy bombardment by the allies on the German Rhineland frontier.

There was no sign of panic during the air raid alarm.

People dived for cellars in the first half hour, but soon boredom overcame their discretion and they began emerging and thinking about going to work.

Many places, particularly hotels and Y. W. C. A. shelters, were equipped with pianos and people clustered around them singing "Daisy," "Home Sweet Home" and "The Lambeth Walk."

All transportation facilities stopped, so many persons began walking to work despite the fact they had not heard an "all clear"

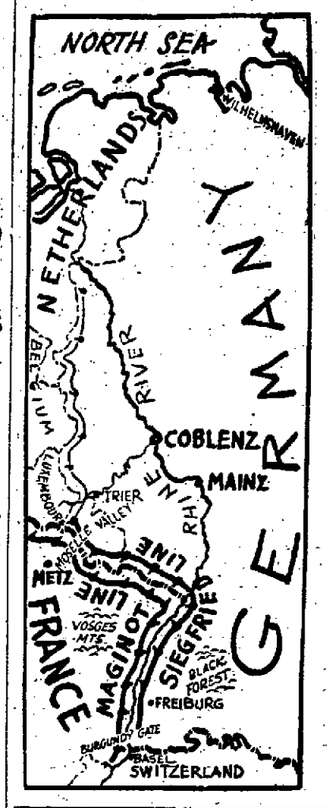
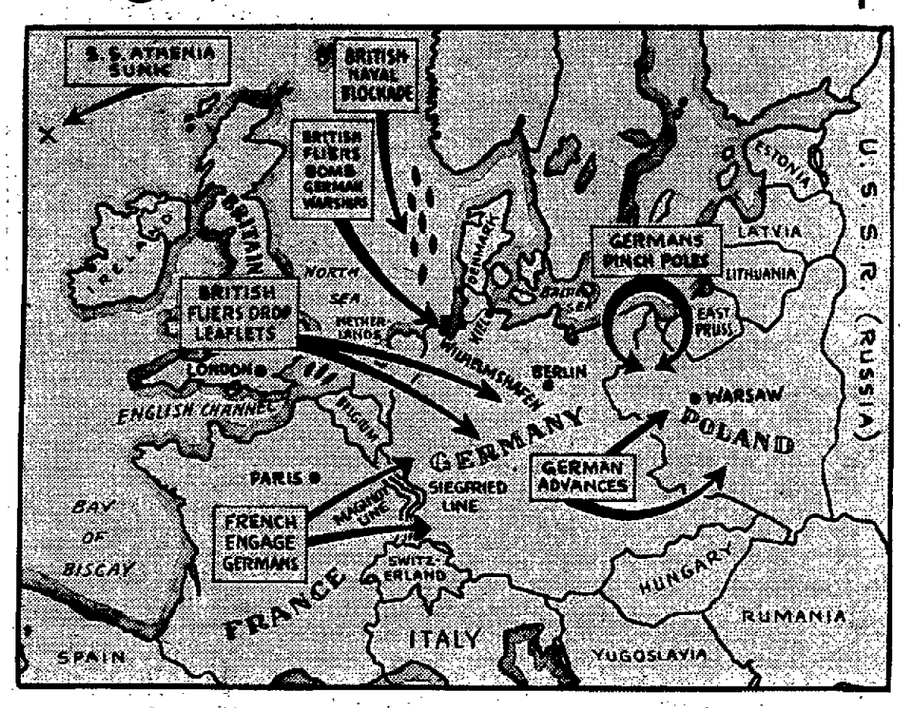
Where War Rages on Two Fronts In Europe



The map at the left shows how French-British and German forces face each other on the western front of the new European war. French advances have been reported in the region of the "Burgundy gate" near the Swiss border and in the Moselle valley, near the Belgian frontier.



Map at right shows how the Germans are directing their advance against Poland, with Krakow (south of Warsaw) captured and Warsaw threatened.

Polish City Of 242,000 Falls to German Army

Invading Troops Take Over Historic 'Poland's Heart'; Government Flees As Other Nazi Legions Drive To Points 35 Miles From Warsaw.

BULLETIN

BUDAPEST—(AP)—The Polish radio interrupted a concert program late today to appeal to all citizens to report to the nearest police station with spades to dig trenches around Warsaw. The broadcast said all manpower was needed.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—The capture by the German army of Krakow, a city often spoken of by the Poles as "Poland's heart," was officially announced today.

German commanding generals, the announcement said, went immediately to Wawel Castle cathedral to render homage to the late Marshal Josef Pilsudski, Poland's strong man, whom the Germans have claimed as their friend.

Wawel contains the tombs of some of Poland's greatest historic personages.

Krakow is 140 miles southwest of Warsaw and about 60 miles east of the German-Polish border, across which Nazi troops swept early last Friday.

(Wawel Castle cathedral, in Krakow, is the burial place of ancient Polish kings. In 1937 Pilsudski's body was removed by order of Prince Sapieha, archbishop of Krakow, from a crypt in the cathedral to the adjoining "silver bell" tower.

(A hot controversy followed, which was settled when the archbishop apologized. Krakow, Poland's ancient capital, is now her fifth largest city, with 242,000 population.)

With the announced capture earlier in the day of Kielce, the German armies had reached another coveted strategic goal.

Only a short distance away in Sandomierz, where the Poles have been centering their new munitions and arms industry. Sandomierz was intended to be what Krupp at Essen or Skoda at Pilsen were to the German and Czech nations.

There were expressions of confidence in official German circles that Sandomierz also soon would capitulate before the German steam roller.

As Polish Silesia and its valuable industries are in German hands and as Krakow is now reported fallen, the official German belief is that effective Polish resistance is near an end.

War pictures, rushed from European battlefronts, will be found on Pages 5 and 13 of today's News-Journal.

German forces were known to be 35 miles northwest of the Polish capital, but a Warsaw dispatch said they had not reached the line of the Bug river 25 miles from the city.

Diplomatic dispatches to Budapest said Warsaw already was under fire of German artillery. There was no mention of

ASSURES PUBLIC OF AMPLE FOOD

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The federal government "undoubtedly" will take prompt and decisive action to prevent skyrocketing of food prices due to the European war, the White House said today.

While Mansfield merchants reassured a "war buying" public that there was an ample supply of food available and there was no need for "hoarding," the state today contemplated an investigation of the price situation.

As housewives throughout the state went to grocery stores to buy food at soaring prices, W. Dale Hilbish, chief of the bureau of markets in Columbus indicated that an investigation would be made into "profiteering markets," United Press reports said.

Hilbish said it was legally possible for his division to make an investigation and that if it appeared that a "food shortage" existed, an examination would be made immediately.

Meanwhile Mansfield merchants blamed a "panicky pub-

A Proclamation

WHEREAS the city of Mansfield is the home of Louis Bromfield, world-famous author, and

Whereas the motion picture, "The Rains Came," made by Twentieth-Century-Fox from Mr. Bromfield's book of the same name, is to have its world premiere at the Warner Brothers Ohio and Madison theaters in Mansfield on Friday night, Sept. 8, and

Whereas it is my belief that Mansfield should pay sincere tribute to Mr. Bromfield on the occasion of the showing of this picture, made from his book,

Therefore, I, Claude M. Hunter, mayor of Mansfield, do proclaim the week beginning Saturday, Sept. 9, as "LOUIS BROMFIELD—THE RAINS CAME" week in Mansfield, and urge that all Mansfield join in paying tribute to this native son who has earned fame in the literary world; as a truly representative American, worthy of all honor.

To which I set my hand and seal,

(Signed) CLAUDE M. HUNTER, Mayor,
City of Mansfield.

U. S. ORGANIZES OCEAN PATROL

Roosevelt Orders Navy Ships, Aircraft to Spot Vessels of Belligerents.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Upon instructions from President Roosevelt, a patrol of naval and coast guard vessels and airplanes is being established to spot vessels of belligerents off the American coast.

Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, announced that this step was being taken as a precautionary measure and for informational purposes entirely.

He said two destroyers and two coast guard cutters already had left to patrol waters off the northeastern United States. This program gradually will be extended to Puerto Rico, waters adjacent to the Antilles and the Canal Zone.

Early declined to provide details about operations of the vessels.

Asked what might happen should an airplane or destroyer sight an English or German warship in waters close to America, he said the government would be advised immediately. The maritime commission would be notified, he said, and American ships in the vicinity advised.

REFUGEES: 125 Still Missing In Torpedoing of British Ship

(By United Press)

LONDON—Five thousand Americans, including survivors of the liner Athenia, begged the American embassy today to get them out of the war zone.

Winston Churchill, head of the admiralty, told commons today that the death toll from the Athenia disaster probably would be larger than was first thought. There are 125 persons still missing, he said.

U. S. Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, it was learned, has urged Washington to act, in the interests of the 5,000 stranded Americans, but there is no chance that enough American ships can be sent here immediately to handle that number. The number of persons who will want to hurry home is expected to increase considerably if and when bombs begin falling on London.

Every American and neutral ship is solidly booked until mid-October. Thousands of Americans refuse to sail on a belligerent vessel now that the Athenia has been torpedoed.

The U. S. embassy is working 24 hours a day getting Americans on board every available ship, even freighters and oil tankers. The crew of the American freighter Eglantine have given up their bunks to 25 women tourists.

Leslie Davis, American consul at Glasgow, said the latest check showed 115 American survivors of the Athenia had reached there. Two of them—Mrs. Katherine Sage and Mrs. Elizabeth Bruce—are in a hospital recovering from slight injuries.

The United States maritime commission at Washington reported that its freighter City of Flint was taking about 110 Americans and about 100 aliens to the United States. Names of 110 American survivors

SPEED OUTPUT

LOS ANGELES—(U.P.)— Assembly lines in big American aircraft factories turning out 100 warplanes a week for France and Britain were humming today despite President Roosevelt's neutrality embargo. For the time being the ships will be stored in warehouses.

A representative of one of the three plants here holding $33,000,000 in orders for France and Britain said provision had been made in the contracts for the eventuality of such an embargo.

6,300 In City Go Back to Studies as Schools Reopen

Mansfield's army of 6,300 school children went back to their studies today as the new term got under way at the city's 12 schools.

Supt. W. L. Miller said the new term opened without a hitch and all of the schools were operating smoothly despite the fact that two temporary buildings are being used until the new junior high schools are completed.

With virtually all of the pupils already registered and their books provided by the board of education, classes were to be held throughout the day except for the beginning pupils.

In the enrollment are approximately 600 first graders who started their 12-year school terms today. During this week, they will be required to attend classes only until 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. Next week, the schedule will be increased a half hour in the morning and afternoon.

Country Day school on Blymyer avenue also reopened for the fall term today.

ADMITS ROBBING MICHIGAN BANK

Former Ohio Convict Held In $2,700 'Nitroglycerine' Holdup.

DETROIT—(AP)—Police Inspector Edward Graff said today George F. Larson, 32-year-old former Ohio convict, had confessed a daring raid on a branch of the National Bank of Detroit which netted $2,700.

With Larson when he was seized yesterday two hours after the holdup was his bride of four months, Cecily, 25, daughter of Professor Roy W. Sellars of the University of Michigan.

Carrying a small vial which he said contained nitroglycerine, the gunman walked into the bank and threatened to blow it up. C. H. Haberkorn, teller, handed over cash amounting to $2,700.

PARIS: French Claim New Advances on Western Front

BULLETIN

PARIS—(U.P.)—Unofficial dispatches reaching Paris today reported a French tank advance toward Saarbrucken and raids by Allied planes on the Rhineland industrial sector. Those developments were not mentioned specifically in the war communiques, which merely reported advances.

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—The French general staff announced today "local advances" had been made by its armies pressing against Germany's Siegfried line.

Communique No. 5, for the morning of Sept. 6, issued by the war ministry, said, "some local advances were effected last evening and during the night."

Just as the communique was being read, sirens shrieked an air raid alarm in Paris. It was the city's first daylight alarm since the war started Sunday and followed one in the early morning, in which firing of anti-aircraft guns was heard from the outskirts of the capital.

A half-hour after the second alarm, enemy planes had failed to appear. French planes had roared off to meet the invaders.

The alarms were said semi-officially to have been caused by the approach of German scouting planes which were turned back by anti-aircraft guns.

Firing was heard southeast of the capital.

French attacks last night were reported officially to be concentrated on the northeast frontier,

Mayor Claude M. Hunter, seated, looks definitely pleased as he signs a proclamation declaring the week beginning Sept. 9, to be "Louis Bromfield-The Rains Came" week, in honor of the release of the picture version of the author's novel "The Rains Came." Interested spectators were left to right, Lou Davidson, New York City, representative of Twentieth Century-Fox; Bromfield, John Routzon, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and William Dworski, manager of the Ohio theater. The picture will have its world premiere Friday night at the Ohio and Madison theaters.

WASHINGTON: U. S. Officially Neutral; Sale of Arms Under Ban

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The United States is officially neutral today and the sale of arms, ammunition and implements of war to belligerents is forbidden.

President Roosevelt, in two proclamations, established neutrality under international law and invoked the neutrality law designed to safeguard this country against involvement.

The two proclamations were issued separately and several hours apart yesterday.

First Mr. Roosevelt announced to the world that the United States intended to remain neutral. This, he said, would be accomplished under the terms and stipulations of international law and numerous treaties.

Under this edict he laid down 17 specific prohibitions upon American citizens and aliens temporarily or permanently residents.

A few hours later the president formally invoked the neutrality

Fund Shortage Threatens to Halt Pike Election Probe

COUNTY LISTS $133 ON HAND FOR INQUIRY

Officials Say No Other Funds Available to Investigate Election Practices.

(By Associated Press)

WAVERLY — A shortage of funds threatened today to disrupt a special grand jury's investigation of alleged fraudulent voting in Pike county.

As the inquiry entered its second day with 27 witnesses to be questioned, County Auditor W. M. Cool reported that only $133 remained in the fund set aside for paying for the jury's expenses.

The $3-a-day fee for each of the 15 jurors plus 6 cents a mile (one way) travel allowance makes the total cost about $52 a day.

So there is hardly enough money for three days and County Auditor Cool and County Treasurer Jacob A. Rapp said no money was available in other funds for transfer to jury expenses.

"I can't see a dime in sight," asserted Sheman Lightle, chairman of the board of county commissioners, which has authority to make transfers. "I am afraid we won't even have the money to meet our present obligations."

Calls It Unnecessary.

O. C. Brammer, another commissioner, declared "this investigation is very unnecessary, and we have a lot of other obligations that are necessary for which there are no funds."

However, Assistant Attorney General T. Crary Davis, who has charge of the investigation, declared "we are going to finish no matter what happens. We shall continue to subpoena witnesses."

The $133 is supposed to provide for grand jury expenses for the remainder of the year. The commissioners appropriated only $700 for this purpose for 1939.

Davis said the state could not pay the grand jury.

Harold M. Baron, another assistant attorney general, had estimated the investigation would require from two to six weeks.

Eight witnesses were questioned yesterday by Davis, Baron and Carl Clark, another representative of Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert.

While Davis declined to comment on the proceedings, it was learned they sought to learn whether persons under the legal voting age of 21 had cast ballots.

Turner Retires as Racing Flier After Triumphing Again

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Race again or no, the name of Col. Roscoe Turner is indelibly stamped into the lisf of aviation's speed champions.

The Chicagoan flew 282.536 miles an hour—a scant mile behind his own record—to win the 300-mile Thompson trophy race yesterday and then announced his retirement from competitive racing.

"I'm getting too old for this business," asserted Turner. "I'll be 44 the 29th of this month. I'm going to start a flying school in Indianapolis."

Turner is the only man to win the Thompson—speed classic of the airways—three times. He won in 1934, 1938 and 1939. In 1933 he captured the cross-continent Bendix event of the National Air Races.

Earl Ortman was third yesterday at 254.435 miles an hour, to win $4,000. Tony Levier, of Montebello, Calif., averaged 272.538 miles an hour for second-place money of $8,000. Turner at the finish was more than 10 miles ahead of Levier.

CALLED FOR JURY DUTY, ACCUSED

Ashlander Bound Over on Charge Of Illegal Arms Possession.

ASHLAND—One of 30 persons called for jury duty in Ashland county, Raymond Moose, 32, of here, today was bound over to the grand jury after pleading guilty to a charge of carrying a revolver without permission, when arraigned before Justice of Peace J. H. Armstrong.

Unable to furnish bond fixed at $300, Moose is being held in county jail. Moose was arrested early last Sunday morning at a road house west of Ashland by Sheriff L. Dale Hammond. Sheriff Hammond said Moose was carrying a .32 caliber revolver, for which he had no permit.

One of the Mansfielders most concerned about the war in Europe is Mrs. Floyd Buzzard, route 30-N, whose sister, Mrs. Dewey Hoyer of Loudonville, is stranded in France as a result of the war. Both Mrs. Buzzard (who was a World war bride) and her sister are natives of France and have many relatives there. Mrs. Hoyer left here June 6 to visit their family. She was told that she would be notified if it were advisable to leave France but the warning came too late. Her passage was booked on the S. S. Isle de France, which is still being held in port.

Mansfield is to have a new mayor on Sept. 21. City council arranged that last night when it voted to "elect" Major Edward Bowes as honorary mayor for the day in recognition of the major's salute to the city on that date in his nation-wide radio program. Council Clerk William J. Beer, jr., was instructed to send a copy of the resolution to Major Bowes in New York.

Oscar Frantz, one of the city's most ardent golfers, has at last conquered his jinx. His so-called "bad hole" is No. 7 at the Possum Run course. The jinx was ended definitely, Oscar hopes, late yesterday afternoon when he drove a No. 6 iron shot perfectly to the cup 158 yards away for a hole-in-one, the first of his career. Witnesses to the feat were Mr. and Mrs. Pete Linster and Nick Linster. It was the second ace shot at the course this year, Joe Kleshinski turning the trick two weeks ago on No. 2.

ILLNESS FATAL

Mrs. Henry Zediker Dies at Home at Age 62.

Mrs. Altha Leora Zediker, of 545 Cline avenue, died at the home Tuesday evening following a lingering illness. Mrs. Zediker was born in New Pittsburgh, O., May 27, 1877, and had resided in Mansfield 40 years. She was a member of the First Christian church.

Surviving are her husband, Henry O.; a daughter, Mrs. Fred M. Bushnell; two sons, Rex A., and Claude W. Zediker of Mansfield; a brother, Claude Butdorf of Ashland; two sisters, Mrs. George Hall of Mansfield and Mrs. Stella Frederick of Gernsey, Wyo., and eight grandchildren.

Services will be held at the Finefrock funeral home at 2:30 p. m. Thursday with Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger of the First Christian church, assisted by Rev. James L. Boyer of the United Brethren church, officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

NAMES FOUR TO PENSION BOARDS

Council Chooses New Member for Police and Firemen's Groups, Re-elects Two.

With two of its present members not candidates at the November election, city council last night elected one new member to both the police and firemen's pension boards. The other member to each board was renamed.

Harry M. Emmons, councilman-at large was elected to the firemen's pension board to replace James E. Crum, councilman-at-large, whose council term ends in December. He did not seek re-election. George C. Kyle, Third ward, the other council member on the board was re-elected.

Sixth Ward Councilman Arthur L. Croak was named to the police pension board to replace Lester D. Hunter, Fourth ward, who leaves council Dec. 31. Hunter was defeated at the primary. Russell D. Porch, First ward, was re-elected.

The council representatives meet with their respective boards late this month for the annual re-organization meetings of both groups. The firemen's board meets Sept. 25 and the police board Sept. 28.

Both police and firemen will meet next Monday to select two members from their respective departments to represent them on the boards.

Police are respesented now by Capt. John Miller and Lieut. Bruce Friday. On the firemen's pension board are Capt. Frank R. Stahl of company No. 4 and Clarence O. Hall, firemen at company No. 1.

Citizens' representatives, all of whom are expected to be renamed at the meetings are C. C. Belman, 356 Davis road, and Tolman Burns, 45 South Linden road, to the firemen's pension board, and Earl K. Troll, 91 Stewart avenue, and Leroy Ish, 396 Oak street, to the police board.

'TRACERS' FIND MARK AS POLICE HOLD TARGET PRACTICE IN DARK

A detail of Mansfield police officers went out to target practice last night in pitch darkness. The moon didn't provide enough light to see their target nor did they use flashlights; yet they riddled a dummy with bullets, fired from 50 and 100 yards.

The night practice inaugurated the police department's rehearsals with "tracer bullets" —bullets which when fired not only illuminate their own course but light up the area being fired upon in startling brightness.

The "tracers" of 45-caliber do as much damage as any ordinary bullet. They travel just as swiftly and go just as far.

When fired, the "tracers" look much the same as Roman candles of the fireworks type only somewhat smaller. The bullet is illuminated until it finally spends itself of power.

Police Chief M. K. Bates described the contents of the bullets and its uses last night.

"The lead pellet is much the same as that in the general run of 45-caliber bullets," he said. "Practically the only difference is the construction of the rear end of the bullet. This is constructed with an indentation in the lead, which provides a small receptacle that is filled with a phosphorus chemical.

"When discharged, the phosphorus is ignited, illuminating the bullet and its course as the lead speeds toward the target."

The chief said the "tracers" are particularly valuable in night time hunting of desperate fugitives cornered in an area of complete darkness.

"One tracer shell fired from a posse of officers, can illuminate enough of the area to give others in the posse a chance at mass firing from which the fugitive would have little chance of escape," Bates added.

Officers shooting the tracers both with revolvers and machine guns last night turned in a highly successful performance. One hit the dummy man target at 50 yards 16 times out of 20 shots fired.

GETS 2ND ORDER

Martin Company Given New Contract for Grain Bins.

A second contract for 1,415 metal storage bins for grain, amounting to about $258,000, was awarded today to the Martin Steel Products company of Mansfield by the federal government.

The firm already is at work on an order for 5,900 smaller bins to cost $626,000. Work under the new contract must be completed by Oct. 10.

The second order calls for bins 18 feet in diameter and 10 feet high. They will be made of galvanized steel and each will hold 2,000 bushels of corn. The bins will be used throughout the middle west for storing corn on which the government will grant loans to farmers.

Because of the size of the orders, the Mansfield firm is building a one-story addition to its plant to provide more floor space.

ACTION PUTS GRADE PROGRAM UP TO COUNTY

Council Approves Measure for City's Participation in $600,000 Proposal.

The future of a proposed $600,000 West Fourth street grade separation project today rested with the county commissioners.

City council last night approved preliminary legislation signifying the city's willingness to participate in the program and thereby left the future of the proposal up to the county.

Both city and county officials had been asked by the state to enter into an agreement, sharing in the cost of the project. The county was asked to contribute $100,000, which was later reduced to $80,000 and the city's share was estimated at $18,000.

The commissioners turned down the plan two months ago on the grounds that they had "no money." They offered $10,000.

It is known however that the commissioners have since consulted state highway department officials on the proposal and are believed to have reached a tentative agreement on a figure somewhere near $50,000.

Calls for 2 Projects.

The proposal calls for the construction of an overpass at the B. & O. railroad and an underpass at the Erie railroad a mile farther west on U. S. route 30 N.

State highway officials have considered construction of both structures in one project for reason of cost which they claim would be reduced by doing both at once.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter told councilmen last night that they should "avail themselves" of the state proposition while the the state law provides that the railroads and city share in the cost on an 85-15 basis.

After Jan. 1, he explained, the cost will be on a 50-50 basis.

HEADS SCHOOLS

Willard High Principal Named New Superintendent.

WILLARD — Dale W. Gates, principal of Willard high school for eight years, was employed as superintendent last night to succeed H. L. Bowman who resigned to head the Bowling Green schools.

Gates, a native of Mt. Gilead, was given a one-year contract by the board of education, effective Oct. 1.

Gates is a graduate of Mt. Gilead high school and Ohio State university. He received his Master's degree last year at Ohio State. The school board has not selected a principal to succeed him.

The Willard high school has an enrollment of 360 this year, largest in its history, Gates said.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Theater Strike Averted But It Might Be Good to Get to Bottom of Dispute

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The stagehands' raid on the actors' corridor has been beaten back, and the lily-handed hams are triumphant in a strident interunion spat which might have closed every theater, movie house and studio in the country.

Briefly, the stagehands tried to muscle into the actors' domain by issuing a charter to that great mass of gin-mill performers who get by on gall in the modern version of the old-fashioned back room or dump where the patrons are assumed to be too drunk to give a damn, or, if sober, too chinchy to deserve consideration.

Of these people, in general, it cannot be said that they are actors, for they rarely even pretend to present any sort of play, nor could the friendliest critic call them singers, for they confine their efforts to the nuzzling of an electrified tin can mounted on a half-inch pipe, and, in the case of the males whining and of the females moaning about love, or, more correctly, lust. They are the heirs to the place, though not the art, which was really something, of the singing waited of the Barbary coast and the old Chicago line.

They are no credit, artistically or socially, to the theatrical profession, but the actors nevertheless, claimed them and their field of employment for their union, because the customers had drifted away from the theater to the dive during the long siege of prohibition.

The actors held the dump, or dive, fo be, in a broad manner of speaking, a place of entertainment, and persisted in their claim of jurisdiction, even knowing that they were invading a suburb of the underworld.

The actors Jim Crowed these performers in a special honky-tonk division of the stage union, and it was this division which the stagehands tried to grab in a "Blitzkieg" stroke executed at a time when the actors were having a little trouble with the honky-tonk talent. The stagehands' further plan was then to decree that all the real actors of the stage and screen must join the honky-tonk union under control of the stagehands.

After that the existing unions of stage and screen actors would fall away and the entire personnel of the American amusement business would be governed by the stagehands.

The actors were prepared to strike, hoping that this would bring before the public full information concerning the affairs of the stagehands' union and the effect of the union's conduct on the amusement industry in general.

In the face of the defiance and, in consideration, no doubt, of the fact that the federal department of justice is now investigating the stagehands in Hollywood, the actors last Sunday night were able to announce that the stagehands' union had retreated to its own borders.

The hands relinquished the honky-tonk union to the actors and waived all claims in the actor's autonomy, and there is now a disposition on the part of the actors to forgive and forget in the interests of union harmony. But that policy would seem to throw down the public, to which the actors were on the point of appealing for support against conditions, which, if they did not overspeak themselves, were criminal.

If the situation was no better than the actors alleged when they were appealing for aid and comfort, then the public has a continuing interest in the case, and the actors' obligation does not wash out at this point.

Only two weeks ago, so the A. P. reported, the department of justice filed documents in the federal court in Los Angeles stating that the government had been informed that the stagehands' union had attempted to obtain money in violation of the anti-racketeering act.

Some of the union actors claim to have information which would seem to pertain to the government's problem, and an abrupt decision to forget the whole thing would place union harmony above the public interest.

And, aside from any question of criminality, the actors, after all their complaints of hard times and their demands for government funds to revive the American theater, would seem duty bound, as citizens, to tell the government what they have said among themselves about the extent to which the rapacity and dictatorial arrogance of the stagehands are responsible for poverty among the actors.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—In a community that abounds in fancy, high-sounding names, I couldn't believe in the existence of a real living Paul Jones. Plain Paul Jones, nothing else.

He's here, though. And he hasn't changed it to Pablo von Jones, or Paul de Jones. Or Paulus van der Jones. It's plain Paul Jones.

He's a producer. He's been in pictures 24 years. He's been everything, practically, there is to be in pictures. He spent his last nickel, actually, to get in pictures. That was for carfare when he decided, came noon one day in the shoestore where he was clerking, that he couldn't stand shoes any longer. The nickel took him to a movie studio, where he got work as an extra. He turned to "propping," gag-writing, assistant-directing (with all the big ones) and then writing.

He's a producer, which is a miracle in itself—because he became one after recommending the story which developed into Paramount's finest picture and one of its more impressive box-office failures.

"I'd read the novel by Josephine Lawrence called "The Years Are So Long" and I was crazy to produce it—only I wasn't a producer," he relates. "So I told Leo McCarey about it, and he made it. A grand picture, but not a popular one. After that, I got plenty of black looks about the lot and hesitated to show my face there, but it turned out all right for me in spite of all." (For McCarey, too, as witness "The Awful Truth," "Love Affair," etc.)

Plain Paul Jones lives in a nice little house in the valley and has a wife and an 18-months-old daughter for whom he goes toy-shopping at intervals. He's dieting at present on account of the daughter—he had some pictures taken with her and he didn't like his waistline. Afraid, I guess, his daughter will see those snaps some day and think Daddy was a producer like the ones in the cartoons.

Paul Jones is producing, at present, an epic called "Untamed." He's enthusiastic about it—"hokey," he says, "but we're using real snow for three shots. Shooting in an ice-stage, where you have to wear a fur coat or you catch pneumonia. I wouldn't have taken the story if we hadn't been able to use real snow.

Paul Jones (no descendant of John Paul Jones, whose life he'd like to film) has a middle name—Meredith—but he doesn't use it. He hails from Bristol, Tenn. Which is enough, for the present, about Plain Paul Jones.

Lee Shippey is one of those rare newspapermen who don't talk about writing novels. Lee just writes them. His latest ("If We Only Had Money") is about Hollywood—and for a composite picture of Hollywood, as it is, without caricature or satire, you can't do better than read it.

Shippey's hero is a young, very poor writer who thinks what the tile implies. He lands a movie contract and he learns—as so many writers before him have learned—about money as it is in Hollywood. He also learns what money and the movies can do to a person.

And in this theme Shippey has caught one of the major tragedies of the town. You can read it (if you prefer it factually) in the news stories about Hollywood bankruptcies.

NAZIS CAPTURE KRAKOW; CLOSE IN ON WARSAW

Historic City of 242,000, Called 'Poland's Heart,' Falls to Germans.

German warplanes roared over the city which hundreds of thousands of Polish citizens had deserted seeking safety in the country. No Polish aircraft rose to meet the German invaders.

Though Britain counted a series of swift successes in raiding German shipping and France said "local advances" had been made against Germany's western fortifications, the Polish front seemed the only spot where the German "blitzkrieg"—the lightning war discussed apprehensively outside Germany for years before hostilities—had come true.

Germany's supreme army command announced the capture of Kielce, 100 miles south of Warsaw, and said its forces were pounding into Poland from three directions —north, south and west.

Thousands' Taken Prisoner.

"Tens of thousands" of prisoners were claimed in the Polish Corridor, which German says she has severed in the eastern campaign which is only five days old.

Germans said the Poles were "partly retreating in disorder, badly shattered."

The Associated Press correspondent with Germany's eastern armies, Louis P. Lochner, reported that Polish civilian sniping was the greatest single difficulty encountered by the German thrust into Poland.

As a result a roundup of all men of military age was ordered in captured territory. One German officer said that "Polish women fight like tigers" against the invaders.

Highways leading out of Warsaw were choken with autos, carts and pedestrians struggling to get away from the threatened capital.

Diplomatic dispatches to Budapest said the Polish government was setting up headquarters at Lublin, 90 miles southeast of Warsaw.

French Claim Advances.

The French general staff announced "some local advances were effected last evening and during the night" against Germany's western wall of fortifications, the Siegfried line, which was interpreted to mean that action had been chiefly against isolated blockhouses and machine gun nests between the main German and French fortifications.

Two air raid warnings alarmed Paris, but no bombs fell. German scouting planes were sighted over Le Havre, on the English Channel. A British communique said three German ships "which might have been converted into armed raiders" had been destroyed in the Atlantic.

Britain declared that Monday's air raid on the German fleet near the Kiel canal had turned out to be "even more successful than was originally intended." However, Germany contended 12 of 20 British air raiders had been destroyed.

The British sea campaign, designed to choke off German shipping, was coordinated with Royal air force "raids" in which 9,000,000 leaflets have been scattered over Germany urging the inhabitants to "get rid of Hitler."

Winston Churchill, Britain's first lord of the admiralty, said that the death toll as the result of the sinking of the British steamer Athenia may reach 125. Survivors of 1,400 aboard blamed the tragedy on a torpedo fired by a submarine without warning.

President Roosevelt, after proclaiming the United States' neutrality and invoking the 1937 neutrality law, was arranging further steps to keep America out of war and plug gaps in American defenses.

He held in abeyance, however, plans for calling congress to revise the neutrality act.

U. S. To Bolster Defenses.

The president said yesterday he intended to bring navy personnel up to its full peacetime strength, recommission some World war type destroyers for coast patrol work, and strengthen army garrisons in Puerto Rico and the Panama Canal zone.

One effect of the European war was a threat to Germany's economic stranglehold on southeastern Europe which may give Italy a chance to turn the table on her axis partner in their old battle for markets.

About half of the $500,000,000 import business of this region has gone to Germany in recent years. But with Germany at war, Premier Mussolini's salesmen are expected to step in with strong bids for the trade of Yugoslavia, Rumania, Hungary and Greece.

Silence continued in Rome on the Italian chieftain's eventual plans, but there were new indications Italy for the present would steer a neutral course.

CITY SHIVERS IN FALL 'PREVIEW'

Mercury Hits 10 Above Freezing But Summer Hasn't Gone.

Mansfield got a preview of fall today when the mercury dropped to 42 degrees, 10 above freezing, but the weatherman said summer is due to return Thursday.

The temperature here, which came close to the frost mark, was one of the lowest in the state.

Cloudy and warmer weather may bring showers by Thursday night or Friday, the forecast said. With the high yesterday at 68 degrees, the day's average was only 55, about 14 degrees below normal. It was 70 at noon today.

FRENCH CLAIM GAINS IN WEST

That 100-mile front "is the most accessible to French forces, with no river barrier in the no-man-'s-land between France's Maginot line and Germany's Siegfried line.

In the third day of operations, today's communique was the first to announce gains. Previous cautious communiques said simply a campaign had begun and was proceeding "normally" with "contact" with German forces in the area between the Rhine and Moselle.

The French public already had been warned by last night's communique that "permanent fortifications" line the front, lest hopes be raised too high by the reported "local advances."

The local gains were interpreted by military observers to mean that French infantrymen under covering artillery fire by 75-millimeter guns had succeeded in crossing the frontier at several points, taking outlying concrete blockhouses.

There was no indication yet of important gains or a general offensive, but the French pressure apparently was increasing in the campaign to force Germany to draw her strength away from Poland.

The second air raid alarm of the morning ended at 11:20 a. m. (5:20 a. m., EST) with the capital apparently still untouched by enemy bombs.

Newspapermen at the war ministry getting the morning's communique when the second alarm sounded took refuge with officers in underground shelters. At the chamber of deputies, ushers and legislators alike gathered in the cellar.

The half-hour alarm was the shortest thus far, and the city resumed its activities with a rush as soon as sirens sounded the "all clear" signal.

BOMB GERMAN CITIES

(By International News Service)

PARIS — Heavy bombing of German industrial centers in the Rhineland by British and French planes was revealed by the Paris press today.

The Paris Midi said:

"Allied aviation severely bombed industrial centers in the Rhineland, notably Aix-La-Chapelle" (Aachen.)

(Editor's note: A Brussels dispatch also reported heavy bombing in the neighborhood of Aachen.)

"The Germans have hard heads," Paris Midi stated, "but now they are beginning to understand."

The newspaper then published its brief mention of allied raids and called attention to reports of a Polish air raid on Berlin, which was denied by Germany.

(Editor's note: Aix-La-Chapelle, or Aachen, lies on the German side of the Belgian frontier on almost a direct line from Liege to Cologne. The Siegfried line or west wall, Germany's chief western fortification, is believed to lie considerably east of Aachen itself. The city, originally an ancient Roman settlement, was in the center of the fighting zone during the early days of the last war.)

U. S. OFFICIALLY NEUTRAL POWER

act which made it mandatory on him to impose an embargo on sale or shipment of arms, munitions or implements of war to all warring powers.

In both proclamations, the president named the belligerents as "France, German, Poland, and the United Kingdom (Britain), India, Australia and New Zealand." He did not include Canada and South Africa. Later, in executive orders to the governmental agencies which will enforce the neutrality laws, Mr. Roosevelt said Canada and South Africa were exempt because they have not entered the war.

Invocation of the neutrality law, in addition to banning the sale or shipment of war materials to belligerents, automatically prohibits Americans from purchasing or dealing in securities of these countries; sets up a national munitions control board and bans the travel of American citizens on belligerent ships after 90 days.

In a third proclamation, he added new safeguards to the Panama Canal Zone. He limited the time belligerent warships may remain there to 24 hours, exclusive of the time required to pass through the canal.

Invocation of the neutrality act makes it illegal to sell or ship the following arms, ammunition and implements of war to combattans in the European war.

Category 1—Rifles and carbines over 22-caliber, and barrels for weapons; machine guns, automatic or autoloading rifles and machine pistols; guns, howitzers and mortars of all kinds, their mountings and barrels; ammunition in excess of 22-caliber, and cartridge cases or bullets, filled and unfilled projectives for guns, howitzers and mortars; bombs, grenades, torpedoes, mines and depth charges filled or unfilled, and apparatus for their use; tanks, military armored vehicles and armored trains.

Category 2—Vessels of war of all kinds, including aircraft carriers and submarines, as well as armor plate.

Category 3—Aircraft, assembled or unassembled, which are designed, adapted and intended for aerial combat; aerial gun mounts and frames, bomb racks, torpedo carriers and release mechanisms.

Category 4—Revolvers and automatic pistols using over 22-caliber ammunition, and ammunition for such weapons.

Category 5—Aircraft, unassembled, or dismantled, both heavier and lighter than air, other than in category three; propellors, fuselage, hulls, wings, under-carriage units, tail units, engines essembled, unassembled or dismantled.

Category 6—Livens projectors and flame throwers; mustard gas; lewisite; other chemicals for gas warfare.

Category 7—Explosives, propellant powders, and acids and chemicals used in the manufacture of such explosives.

ATHENIA DEATH TOLL INCREASES

aboard the Flint were wirelessed by the ship.

Canadian authorities here said 504 survivors were landed at Greenock, Scotland, including 96 Canadians, and 506 at Galway, including 136 members of the crew of the Athenia.

The City of Flint, Greenock and Galway reports brought the total of known survivors to 1,220 and left 198 unaccounted for.

Canadian authorities reported that the yacht Southern Cross was carrying 150 survivors. However, it was believed that the yacht transferred all its survivors to the City of Flint and a British destroyer. Also the Canadian authorities had only eight listed as aboard the City of Flint. The Canadian estimate was that 248 were unaccounted for, including probably 100 of the crew.

With some survivors on the Atlantic, some in Scotland and some in Ireland, it naturally was difficult to get an exact check.

It was certain only that some were killed when a torpedo struck the Athenia Sunday night. Survivors, and the yacht Southern Cross, reported that many persons drowned, some when one or more lifeboats capsized.

signal. They carried their "lunch boxes" as gas masks are now called here.

Tells of Warsaw Drive.

In the house of commons, R. A. Butler, under-secretary of state for foreign affairs, told a questioner that the German bombing of Poland had been generally directed against objectives having some military purpose but that there had been some civilian casualties. He said he had no official report that gas had been used.

The ministry information announced that further extensive reconnaissance flights had been staged over Germany Tuesday night and early today by Royal air force planes. Copies of another note "to the German people" again were dropped over a wide area, it was said, without any engagements by enemy planes.

Nazi Ships Destroyed.

It was made known that three German ships which might have been converted into armed commerce raiders had been destroyed somewhere in the Atlantic and that the safety of their crews had been provided for.

The information ministry admitted that several British merchantmen had been attacked or sunk by German submarines.

A Danish fishing boat was reported sunk by a German mine, presumably in the Baltic.

A brief official communique said that there was reason to believe that the royal air force bombing raid on the German war fleet at Wilhelmshafen and Brunsbuttel near the North sea entrance to the Kiel canal had been more successful than was originally reported. The orginal report was that several direct hits were scored on German warships and that two battleships were damaged.

A message to the Cunard line from Capt. Walter Poole of the small freighter Bosnia, torpedoed 125 miles off the western Irish coast, said:

"Bosnia set on fire by gunfire of submarine. All hands rescued by Norwegian tanker Eidanger. Fireman Woods dead. Submarine torpedoed and sank Bosnia at 9:35 A. M. Greenwich mean time Monday (4:35 a. m. EST Monday.)"

A second message said the Eidanger would land all survivors during the night.

It was not yet known how many people, including Americans and Canadians, perished in the torpedoing of the liner Athenia 250 miles west of Ireland.

There was a report that a British destroyer chased and sank the submarine which torpedoed the Athenia. The ministry of information merely quoted the admiralty as stating that it could say nothing.

British airplanes dropped 3,000,000 more propaganda leaflets over Germany yesterday and returned without casualties.

It was the general belief that before long both Britain and France would intensify air raids on military objectives, and bomb the German fleet frequently.

'THE RAINS CAME' RANKS AT TOP AS FILM SPECTACLE

Brilliant All-Star Cast to Appear in Picture, With Premiere Here Friday.

One of the most spectacular pictures to come out of Hollywood in a half a decade is the screen adaption of Louis Bromfield's "The Rains Came," which has its premiere in Mansfield Friday night.

A cast as brilliant as any ever assembled for a picture is seen in this story of India, with even the smallest character roles in the hands of famous players.

For the four leading characters Darryl F. Zannuck of Twentieth Century-Fox chose Myrna Loy, George Brent, Tyrone Power and lovely young Brenda Joyce, while the character roles have been assigned to such players as Joseph Schildkraut, Mary Nash, Jane Darwell, Marjorie Rambeau, H. B. Warner, Laura Hope Crews, Nigel Bruce and Maria Ouspenskaya.

Miss Loy steps aside from her famous "perfect wife" roles to play the amorous Lady Edwina Esketh who found real love after a life wasted in playing at love. Brent has what is probably the most important role of his career as Tom Ransome, the dissipated Englishman, who was a ghost out of Lady Esketh's romance-strewn path.

Power, after a long series of roles which even his most ardent fans have protested as being unsuited to him, finds a character in Major Safti for which he seems ideally suited. Miss Joyce, the University of California co-ed, won the important role of Fern Simon after 58 of Hollywood's most promising players had tried out for it.

Heading the supporting cast is Maria Ouspenskaya, the fascinating Russian actress who heads one of the most important theater schools in America and who was an outstanding hit as the grandmother in "Love Affair."

Bromfield's story is a tremendous tale of human emotions running riot when Mother Nature goes on a spree with a flood, a hurricane, an earthquake and pestilence. The story is laid in Ranchipur, a city of India, ruled by the powerful Maharanee.

The city was reconstructed on an 18-acre field by Twentieth Century-Fox, and then during the course of the story, is destroyed by all of the evil forces of nature.

That the rains really came to this Hollywood lot is evidenced by the fact that 10,000 gallons of water fell during each shooting minute, approximately 40 inches a day, and the "rains came" for 47 days out of the three months that the story was before the cameras. Myrna Loy had to change her costume sometimes as much as 25 times a day.

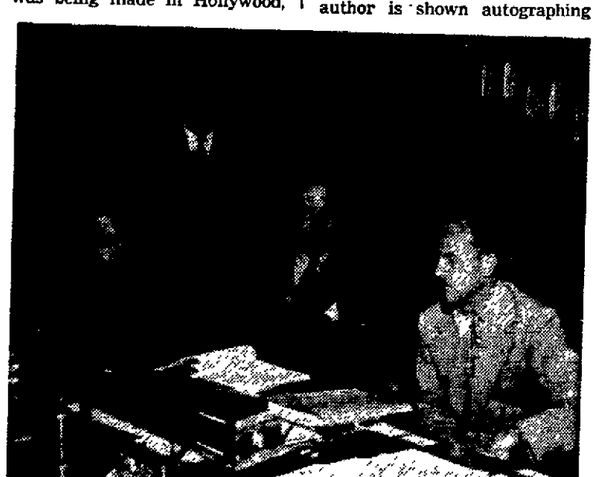
To climax the flood, a huge dam breaks and drowns hundreds of citizens, rich and poor. More than 3,000 natives and 40 elephants were used in the picture.

Bromfield, who was in Hollywood during much of the filming of the picture, was impressed with the authenticity of scenes and characters used in his story.

Principals In "The Rains Came," Which Has Premiere Here Friday Night

When "The Rains Came" was being made in Hollywood, Bromfield was one of the most interested observers. Here the author is shown autographing his book for lovely Myrna Loy who plays the part of Lady Esketh.

Louis Bromfield, author of the "best seller" novel "The Rains Came" from which Twentieth Century-Fox made its spectacular picture of the same name, and which has its world premiere in Mansfield Friday night. Bromfield is one of Mansfield's most widely known "products."



Bromfield sat in on a number of studio conferences on the filming of his novel, "The Rains Came." Shown here are, left to right, Clarence Brown, director; Harry Joe Brown, associate producer; Bromfield, and Darryl F. Zannuck, producer.

Three number one names of picturedom were chosen to portray three of the four major roles in "The Rains Came"—Tyrone Power who has the role of Major Safti; Myrna Loy as Lady Edwina Esketh; and George Brent as Tom Ransome.

Brenda Joyce as Fern Simon
Nigel Bruce as Lord Esketh
Maria Ouspenskaya as The Maharani
Joseph Schildkraut as Mr. Rao
Mary Nash as Miss MacDaid
Jane Darwell as Aunt Phoebe
Marjorie Rambeau as Mrs. Simon
Henry Travers as Rev. Homer Smiley
H. B. Warner as The Maharajah

REUNION. The Maharajah's dinner in honor of the visiting Esketh rekindles the past for the amorous Lady Esketh and Tom Ransome.

EARTHQUAKE. Breathtaking destruction of a great modern State.

THEATERS

JEAN HERSHOLT, one of the best loved actors in Hollywood, reported today that if anybody owed a debt of gratitude to the Dionne quintuplets it was himself. The five little maids of Callender have started Hersholt on the road to becoming a millionaire, since he began playing in their feature pictures. It is one of the strangest stories to come out of topsy-turvey Hollywood. Hersholt came from Denmark 25 years ago. In 1936 he was assigned to play the role of the country doctor who ushered in the famous quints. He has made three pictures with them. Then he became so famous that he was signed to do a series of broadcasts in which he played a kindly doctor. This went over so big that RKO will now make a series of pictures about this same radio character, Dr. Paul Christian.

War May Take "Saint."

George Sanders, English screen player who recently has made a hit in the series revolving around The Saint, may make no more of these pictures for he is subject to call in the English army. One of the last of these pictures, and which has just been released is "The Saint in London," in which the crook who fights crooks outwits a gang of international swindlers. Also shown on the new Madison bill tomorrow is "It Could Happen to You," With Gloria Stuart and Stuart Irwin.

For the Hobbyists.

"In Name Only," the social triangle story in which Carole Lombard, Kay Francis and Cary Grant are starred, runs through today at the Ohio, giving way tomorrow to "Everybody's Hobby," in which Irene Rich and Henry O'Neill are just two of the 30,000,000 hobbyists in America. The story, while gently satirizing the American fancy for hobbys, points out that it is a pretty good outlet for human energy. The picture will be shown through Thursday only as the theater will be dark Friday, opening in the evening for the premiere of "The Rains Came."

A Movie "Natural."

When moviegoers first cast an eye on Ruth Hussey about a year ago, they perked up, for here was a new player who actually had talent as well as beauty. She had no publicity fan-fare from her studio, but movie audiences picked her for a "natural." This New England girl was a fashion commentator for radio and had appeared in several stage plays before the road show of "Dead End" took her to Los Angeles. And there her movie career began. One of her recent pictures is "Within the Law," which is being shown at the Ritz, along with "Three Smart Girls," a Deanna Durbin picture.

"Blind Alley."

The dramatic story of a handsome killer who breaks jail and crashes a week-end party is told in "Blind Alley," opening at the Park theater tomorrow. Chester Morris has one of the best roles of his picture career as the killer who shows up the characters of each one of the guests at the party. "For Love or Money," the second feature, has June Lang and Robert Kent.

"Garden of the Moon."

Jimmy Fidler, the much-feared radio commentator of Hollywood, makes his appearance in "Garden of the Moon," which the Majestic is showing through Thursday. Margaret Lindsay, Pat O'Brien and John Payne head the cast of this musical show which is based on a recent serial in the Saturday Evening Post. "Boys Town," one of the impressive films of the year, is the real life story of Father Flannigan and his efforts to rehabilitate homeless and delinquent boys. Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney head the cast.

OK'S REDUCTION IN CONSERVANCY TAXES FOR 1940

Court Approves Collection of Levy as Part of General Property Assessment.

A Mansfield Conservancy district tax rate of four-tenths of a mill for 1940, a drop of two-tenths of a mill from the 1939 rate, had been approved today by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston.

The court also approved collection of the conservancy levy as a part of the general property tax, eliminating the necessity of paying two separate taxes. The conservancy office, which previously was located in the courthouse basement, was combined with the treasurer's office several months ago.

The lower rate is due to a reduction in the needs for bond retirement and interest next year and a drop in the cost of collecting the tax.

Saves Collection Expense.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe explained that combining the two taxes would save about $2,000 a year in collection expense and make payment more convenient.

The change was made as the result of a supreme court ruling requiring the collection of conservancy levies with general property taxes, he said.

Beginning next year, the auditor will make a settlement of the conservancy tax as he does of property taxes which would have been impossible under the separate collection system, Wolfe said.

The conservancy levy, payable in Mansfield and parts of Madison township, provides funds for retiring $165,000 in bonds issued seven years ago to finance a flood prevention survey in the city area. The project never materialized.

SUES AUTOIST

Contending that Andrew Takos, R. D. 3, Mansfield, went to sleep while driving his car last April near Seville, permitting the car to leave the highway and crash through a guard rail, Nicholas Arron, 339 Orange street, had filed a suit for $1,629 damages in common pleas court today against Takos.

Arron said he was riding with Takos and was injured in the accident. The car, Arron said, turned over several times after leaving the highway. Atty. H. G. Clark filed the action for Arron.

Ex-Open Champ to Exhibit Shots at Possum Thursday

Here Are 'Shots' of Guldahl, 'Best Since Jones'

SWINGING . . . . Here's Ralph Guldahl, who plays exhibition at Possum Run Thursday, on the tee.

JUST RESTING . . . Not only one of the best pro golfers, Guldahl also is one of the handsome lads.

RALPH GULDAHL is coming to the Possum Run course Thursday to show Mansfield how to play championship golf.

Guldahl, needless to explain, is the former U. S. Open champion (this tournament's winner twice, in fact), and packs one of the greatest golfing reputations in present day golf.

The hard-hitting Norwegian club wielder will appear at the course at 3 p. m., and will give an exhibition of shots before taking to the first No. 1 tee for a match with three of Possum Run's finest.

Appearing with Guldahl in the exhibition match will be Joe Mayer, rated as one of the city's outstanding amateurs; Joe Kasper and Vin Malaska, a couple of other capable shotmakers.

Regarded as the greatest golfer since Bobby Jones, Guldahl won the National Open title in 1937 and 1938 and annexed the Western Open crown three years in a row, the first golfer ever to accomplish this feat.

Guldahl has won virtually every major golf title which exists, and, being on this side of 30, he is expected to add to his laurels before he hangs up the sticks.

GOLFERS TO PLAY IN POSSUM EXHIBITION WITH GULDAHL SELECTED BY DRAW.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor

SELECTION of members to fill the exhibition troupe to be headed by Ralph Guldahl at Possum Run at 3 p. m. Thursday caused Walter (Irish) McGee some grief.

There are about a dozen Possum Run golfers who wallop the daylights out of par quite regularly, and naturally, the majority wanted a chance to appear with the former U. S. Open champion.

McGee could hardly be blamed for not wishing to make the choices, although no one had more right to take the responsibility.

The Possum Run operator made an exception of Joe Mayer, who deserves a place in the foursome on his great showing in the recent Ohio Publinks tournament in which he finished third.

But McGee was unable to decide on the other two. So he did the best thing possible. He placed the names of the 20 leading swingers in a hat and drew for the posts.

Vin Malaska and Joe Casper were selected as members of the foursome in this manner.

Those who think that Tiffin's big John Cindric is just a kid first baseman with a lot of promise have been mislead. Cindric made his pro debut with Washington in the Penn State league in 1938, and he played semi-pro ball the next season when this club broke up. He was with Columbia in the South Atlantic league in 1937 and with a Carolina league club last year until he broke his ankle. John's been around for a Class D ball player.

Edwards Unanimous Choice for Berth On All-Star Team

THREE unanimous choices and two players held over from the 1938 aggregation feature this year's all-star team of the Ohio State league, which saw the Lima Pandas lead the way in representation. The Pandas put four men on the team. Findlay had three, Fostoria two, and the remaining three were equally divided between Tiffin, Mansfield and Fremont.

At first base, Johnny Cindric of Tiffin was opposed by Fred Gerken of Fremont, but the former took the job with a wide margin of votes.

Stephenson Named.

Harry Stephenson of Findlay was an outstanding favorite at the second sack, Pat Capri of Fostoria, his nearest rival, giving him little trouble.

Harlan Kiersey of Lima had a more well-defined margin as the team third baseman, no other candidate polling more than one vote.

There was more of a contest at short, with Buck Kozak of Lima coming out the victor. George Todhunter of Findlay and Steve Gromek of Mansfield made a pretty tight race of it, splitting the vote.

The all-star outfield is made up of Herb Woodten of Lima in left, Del Wilber of Findlay in center and Henry Edwards of Mansfield in right.

Woodten was one of the unanimous selections who polled every vote. Wilber was a prime favorite in center, although not all his followers place him in the middle garden. He is one of the holdovers from last year, having been picked as all-star catcher in 1938. Edwards was another unanimous choice, the voters having very little trouble in naming the three gardeners.

Four catchers figured prominently in the "election", but a margin of two votes gave the decision to George Ruley of Findlay, with John Spartichino of Mansfield, Jim Lawrence of Tiffin and Carl Foldenauer, also of Tiffin, all in the runner-up spot.

Les Wirkkala of Fremont was head and shoulders ahead of the field in clamping down the right-handed pitching berth. Last year's southpaw pitcher, Fred Berger, of Fostoria, was returned to the lineup this year by unanimous vote.

He's Utility Man.

George Jenkins of Fostoria slipped in as the utility man in a close race with Ted Haas of Fremont.

A newcomer in the league, Merle Settlemire of Lima, was given the managerial direction of the all-stars, but he was crowded right down to the wire by Chappie Geygan of Fremont. It was necessary to use the second-choice votes to determine a winner, and Settlemire had a margin of two to gain the call.

The team was selected through a vote of the circuit writers and managers, with the National Association Press Bureau collecting and tabulating the ballots. All players receiving votes, but falling short of places, are accorded honorable mention. Here's the way the 1939 all-star team of the Ohio State league stacks up:

Name.	Position	Club
Cindric	1B	Tiffin
Stephenson	2B	Findlay
Kiersey	3B	Lima
Kozak	SS	Lima
Woodten	LF	Lima
Wilber	CF	Findlay
Edwards	RF	Mansfield
Ruley	C	Findlay

HONORABLE MENTION — Siegbert, Beals, Gromek, Stover, Spartichino, Mossor and Olesko of Mansfield; Gerken, Loustalet, Sewell, McDonough, Kerr, Cunningham, Banta, Haas and Geygan of Fremont; Capri, Navrocki, Crawford, Perrone, King, Bakkelund and Farmer of Fostoria; Williams, Todhunter, Quackenbush, Flynn, Griffith, Biscan and Willett of Lima; Cannon, Roth, Fletcher and Hartley of Findlay, Kudrycki, Rollins, Lawrence, Foldenauer and Curry of Tiffin.

Commercial Loop To Open Thursday

The first Mansfield bowling league to launch its schedule this year will be the Commercial B league which opens at the Meder lanes at 8:15 p. m. Thursday. Secretary Roy Vaughn announced today. The league will again consist of 12 teams.

Sharing the alleys with the Commercial league on Thursday nights will be the Moose home league, which will inaugurate its season next week. The lodge league, which will include 12 teams, will bowl at 6:30 p. m.

Lutherans Rally To Whip Baptists

Trailing by a 3 to 1 count going into the second inning, the First Lutheran club tallied four times to grab the lead and hand the Park Avenue Baptist team a 5 to 3 beating in a five-inning Y. M. C. A. Church softball league game yesterday at Prospect park.

The winners secured four hits off Harner, who fanned seven, but a double by Stone was the deciding factor in the second inning scoring spree.

In the other league setto, the First Congregational outfit won on a forfeit over St. Mark's Lutherans.

All-Stars, Rams Kick Off Lid

Crowd of More Than 30,000 Seen for Annual Ohio Game In Cleveland.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The best from Ohio's college gridirons, the All-Stars, battle one of the nation's good pro teams, the Cleveland Rams, tonight at the Stadium in the state's first football game of the season.

The charity contest, sponsored by the Cleveland News and the American Legion, is expected to draw between 30,000 and 40,000. It will be the second collegiate-professional test here, the Rams having won the 1938 fracas, 10 to 7.

Introduce New Coach.

Coach Earl (Dutch) Clark, sparkplug of the Portsmouth (O.) Spartans during their days in the pro league, will be directing the Rams for the first time, having come here after a successful term as player-coach of the Detroit Lions.

While neither squad has been in training long enough to formulate much of a razzle-dazzle offense, indications were that the contest would be a wide open affair featured by plenty of passing.

Clark named eight veterans in his starting lineup, including two Ohioans. Tackle Art Lewis, of Ohio university, and Guard Phil Ragazzo, of Western Reserve.

The pros plan to open with Kelly Moan, of West Virginia; Johnny Drake, of Purdue; Vic Spadaccini, of Minnesota, and Gaylon Smith, of Southwestern, in the backfield.

The All-Stars' ball-carrying duties, at the start at least, will fall on the shoulders of Al Litwak and Mike Rodak, of Western Reserve; Johnny Montgomery, of Ohio university, and Bill Bullock, of Ohio State.

Jim Benton, of Arkansas, and Paul McDonough, of Utah, will be at ends for the Rams; Ben Friend, of Louisiana State, and Lewis at tackles; Capt. Tom Hupke, of Alabama, and Ragazzo, at guards, and Chuck Cherundolo, of Penn State, at center. Friend, Moan and Smith are the newcomers to the pro game.

Start For Stars.

Against the Ram line, averaging 230 pounds, the All-Stars will pit Ends Gabe Szabo, of Miami, and Johnny Wilson, of Reserve; Tackles Dick Domanski, of John Carroll, and Andy Saxon, of Reserve; Guards Harry Shelby, of Cincinnati, and Al Schmerge of St. Xavier, and Center Tom Manning of Dayton.

Bowling Notes

An organization meeting of the Commercial C league will be held at the Meder Recreation alleys at 8 p. m. today. Bowlers wishing to join the league are requested to attend the meeting.

* * *

The 1939-40 Club handicap league schedule will be lifted at the Meder alleys at 6:30 p. m. Monday with 12 teams. The Commercial Managers are the defending champions.

Indian Hopes Again Jolted

Lose to Sox, 4-2, Fall Three Games Behind Third Place.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The Indians realized today that they are going to have a hard fight to finish in first division.

Their third-place hopes were jolted yesterday as Chicago clipped them, 4 to 2, putting the Sox three games ahead.

The defeat left the Redskins in fourth place, only one game ahead of the Detroit Tigers, their foes in a two-game series opening here today.

Mel Harder was scheduled to go after his 11th victory, with Southpaw Hal McKain the Detroit mound choice.

Chicago won its sixth consecutive victory over the Tribe by a four-run rally in the first inning. The tallies came on five hits and errors by Rollie Hemsley and Ben Chapman.

Cleveland's two runs in the third resulted from Chapman's single, Hal Trosky's double and Jeff Heath's one-base blow.

Harry Eisenstat, victim of the opening inning outburst, held the Sox to six scattered hits for the next seven innings. Joe Dobson pitched the ninth and allowed one hit.

Cleveland threatened in the ninth on sigles by Roy Weatherly and Chapman, the third hit for the latter. Jack Knott went the route for Chicago, giving up 10 scattered hits.

The Indians meet the Tigers again tomorrow and then take to the road for the remainder of the season, returning only for a three-day stand against Detroit Sept. 22 to 24.

DEFEAT REDS, 16 TO 4, IN ALL-STAR CONTEST

The All-Stars defeated the Reds by a 16 to 4 margin in a Friendly House Junior baseball league all-star game at Columbia Tire field yesterday. It was the third defeat in 21 starts for the Reds.

Play Twin Bill At Fairground

First Game of Double-Header Billed at 7:45; Mansfield Whips Fremont, 9 to 8.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

WEAKENED by the loss of Delbert Leslie, who will probably be lost to the club for the remainder of the season because of an injured shoulder, the Braves will attempt to finish the season with only five pitchers.

And all that these five slingers have to tackle in the next five days is eight ball games.

Starting tonight with Findlay at the Fairground, the tribal warriors will play three double-headers in as many days. They are scheduled for a bargain bill in Findlay Thursday and a twin bill with Lima at the home bailiwick Friday.

This string of double-headers with only a five-man pitching staff available may prove disastrous to the Braves' chances to lift themselves out of the cellar.

Needs Replacements.

Manager Dewey Stover has not given up hope of landing another pitcher or two to bolster the staff in the final drive, but so far has been unsuccessful in his search for capable help.

Leon Maloney's failure to go the distance against the Fremont Green Sox at the Fairground last night did not help to solve Stover's pitching problems.

Howard Patterson, who has won both of his starts as a Brave, and either Bob Schremser or George Laurila will get the call tonight when the Mansfielders stack up against Grover Hartley's title-ambitious Oilers at the Springmill street ball orchard.

Incidentally, the first game of tonight's double-header is scheduled to get under way at 7:45.

Although the fielding behind him was atrocious at times, Maloney felt the sting of the Fremont bats last night. He was jerked in the seventh for a pinch-hitter, and Lefty Mossor, who was unable to go against the Sox the night before, finished the game and received credit for the 9 to 8 victory to keep Mansfield's Shaughnessy playoff hopes alive.

Ankey

In the final half of the seventh with the score 7 to 5 against them, the Braves took advantage of Virgil Feeney's wildness to score two runs to knot the count. Stan Olesko's pinch infield single tallied the first of the two runs and Feeney's wild pitch permitted the Braves to tally the tying marker in the listless game which lasted two hours and 55 minutes.

With Mossor toeing the elevation, the Sox went ahead again on a pair of passes and a single in their half of the eighth, but the Braves came back to deadlock the score and produce the winning run.

There was only one out when Feeney loaded the sacks with passes in the final half of the eighth, and some nice footwork by Harry Siegbert ruined a double play on Jack Weiler's grounder and enabled Hank Edwards to cross with the tying run.

What proved to be the winning run followed on the next play when Shortstop Doustalet bobbled Patterson's grounder to permit "Birdie" Wrenn to fly home.

Maloney was staked to a 5 to 1 lead in the first three innings, but the Sox kept peppering away at the right-hander's offerings, and tied the score with the aid of some faulty fielding in the fifth. The Fremont boys took their first lead in the seventh when the Sox got a life on Weiler's error before crossing up Frank Ankenbrandt with a bunt down the third base line.

Ankenbrandt led the nine-hit attack for the Braves with a double and a trio of singles.

Loustalet's game-losing error was costly, but Feeney contributed more than his share toward the defeat. He issued 11 walks and produced five wild pitches, with Catcher Kerr turning in a pair of passed balls.

13 Runners Stranded.

The Braves were offered many scoring chances because of Feeney's wildness, but took advantage of few. They left 13 base runners stranded, three in one inning and two in four other frames.

Pitcher Patterson took over the chore in left field last night in the absence of Connie Zerman, who has been lost to the club for the rest of the campaign because of a pulled muscle in his stomach. Dale Leedy will probably patrol the field tonight.

One of the niftiest fielding plays pulled at the Fairground this season was authored by Shortstop Weiler in the sixth when he raced back of second and made a brilliant back-handed stop of Feeney's roller to start a double play.

Friday Games to Mark 'News-Journal Night.'

Friday night's double-header featuring the Braves against the Lima Pandas at the Fairground will be "News-Journal Night", and fans with coupons now appearing on this page will be admitted for a service charge of only 15 cents.

Delays Play Until Friday

News-Journal Loop to Rest for Guldahl Exhibition.

The News-Journal Class B golf league matches, scheduled at Possum Run Thursday, have been postponed until 5 p. m. Friday. The contests were moved back a day because of the Ralph Guldahl exhibition at the course at 3 p. m. Thursday.

Interest in this week's settos will center on the league leading Ohio Public Service foursome and the Central Fruit club wielders. The Servicemen, who hold a two-point lead over the runner-up club, will attempt to retain their advantage against Al's Kicks, while the second-place team clashes with the Auxter Motors.

Harvey's Sample Shoes, resting in third place, three points out of the lofty perch, plays the Elks Lodge club, the Bissman company entry faces the Mansfield Metal Vaults and the Richman Clothes meet The News-Journal shotmakers.

Believe Reds Are Within Sighting Distance Of Their First Pennant In Twenty Years

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK—(AP)—There was some justification today for believing that the Cincinnati Reds were within sighting distance of their first pennant in 20 years.

The Reds won a highly important battle yesterday, battling 10 innings to beat the runner-up Cardinals, 3-1. That may easily turn out to be the decisive victory of the campaign. It increased their lead to five games—six on the all-important losing side. And from now on the Reds will have very little traffic with the Cards and Cubs, their two most dangerous rivals. They have four games left with the Cards, all at Cincinnati, and two with the Cubs.

Bucky Walters hung up his 22nd victory by going the route to beat Max Lanier, rookie portsider recently called in from Columbus. Each pitcher gave up seven hits. Lanier cracked in the 10th and was replaced by Andrews, who retired the last two men.

With one out in the 10th, Frenchy Bordagaray, ex-Cardinal, started the Reds' winning surge with a single to center. When King fumbled he raced to second. Frey was passed and Walters slapped a single to center, scoring Bordagaray and sending Frey to third. Werber forced Walters at second, Brown to Stu Martin. Frey scoring on the play.

The interborough battle between the Giants and the Dodgers continued apace with the Terrymen retaining their half-game hold on fourth place by rattling the Phillies for a 6-0 victory. Cliff Melton held the Phils to nine hits, being aided by four double plays.

Brooklyn stung the Bees, 6-2, with Hugh Casey pitching a six-hitter.

Battling to hold third place in the American league, the White Sox turned back the Indians, 4-2, and now lead the Tribe by three games. Aided by two errors by Ben Chapman and Rollie Hemsley the White Sox counted four runs in the first inning off Harry Eisenstat.

Jack Knott went the route, and had only one bad inning, the third, in which Chapman's single, Trosky's double and Heath's single scored two runs.

The fifth place Tigers moved within one game of the fourth-place Indians when they licked the Browns, 4-2. Hank Greenberg's 25th homer broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth to clinch the victory.

Yanks Need 12 to Cinch Title

New York Has Only 25 More Games to Play.

NEW YORK — (INS) — The New York Yankees today began making preparations for the world series which opens on Oct. 4 at Yankee stadium, with the party of the second part to be named at some later date. All anybody knows now is that the Yankees are virtually in. Lined up against them may be the St. Louis Cardinals, who are coming through the stretch with a rush, but more likely it will be the Cincinnati Reds, who yesterday beat the second place Cards by 3 to 1 to stretch their National league lead to five games.

While the Reds thus are winning the hard way—if indeed they are winning—and are counting every game won and lost, the Yanks sit back more or less secure in the knowledge that it would be virtually impossible for them to muff the American league pennant now. All they need is 12 victories in their remaining 25 games to make it four flags in a row. The second place Boston Red Sox couldn't stop them then even if the latter won all of their remaining 26 games.

And, of course, every time the Red Sox drop a game the Yankees need that many less wins. They're in by now.

Charleston Lands In Second Place

(By Associated Press)

Another one of those hair-raising stretch drives which generally climaxes a Mid-Atlantic season gave Charleston second place over Akron today as the gates swung shut on the regular playing season.

The playoffs —Springfield at Charleston and Akron at Canton —will open Thursday.

Final Standings.

Canton	77	52	.597
Charleston	70	60	.538

CHARTERED BUS TO TAKE GRID FANS TO CLEVELAND

A special package of entertainment has been arranged for football fans of this city tonight when the All-Stars of Ohio clash with the Cleveland Rams under the lights in the Cleveland Stadium.

Round trip transportation aboard a chartered coach, which will operate direct to the Stadium in Cleveland, plus a reserved seat in a favored section in the stadium, is being offered by the Greyhound Lines. The bus will leave the terminal at 6 p.m.

SCORE FOUR TOUCHDOWNS IN FIRST HALF TO WIN

The Tigers pushed over four touchdowns in the opening half to grab an early lead and wallop the Rams, 36 to 12, in a Friendly House "touch" football league game yesterday. The Rams tallied markers in the second and third quarters.

Trotters Pace Record Second Time in Week.

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)— Greyhound and Rosalind, champions of the trotting world, had a new team record on the books today for the second time in less than a week.

Sep Palin, Indianapolis trainer, hitched them to a pole yesterday and drove them a mile in 1 minute, 58¼ seconds before an Indiana state fair crowd. This was three-quarters of a second better than they did last Thursday at Syracuse, N. Y., to break the 27-year-old mark of Uhlan and Louis Forest.

MARINES PACE FIELD IN INDIVIDUAL SHOOT

CAMP PERRY — (AP) — Army service rifles blaze across the 1,000-yard range today at the National matches as 2,027 of the nation's No. 1 marksmen battle through the last stage of the individual rifle championship.

Two marines, Gunnery Sergt. Claude N. Harris, of Lancaster, N. C., the 1935 winner, and Sergt. Raymond D. Chaney, of Crane, Tex., tied yesterday at the end of the first four stages of the all-around meet, each counting 193 of 200.

German Troops Enter Burning Polish Village

Here, literally, are the flames of war destroying the works of peacetime. This Central Press radiophoto, passed by the German censor, shows burning buildings in a Polish village. Note the German troops in combat motor cars entering the town. The official German report accused the fleeing Polish forces of firing the town, referring to this picture as showing "demolition work by retreating Polish troops." The German censor refused to reveal the town's name.

War Censorship of Paris Paper

This photograph shows how war-time censorship has already clamped down on European newspapers. This newspaper is L'Action Francais, a French Royalist publication issued in Paris. Note how columns of type have been removed by the official censor because their content did not meet government approval.

JUST KIDS — By Ad Carter

JOHN-I WANT TO TALK TO YOU...
YES SARAH
JOHN-ARE YOU REALLY GOING TO HAVE OUR BOY WORK AFTER SCHOOL?
HE SAID HE WANTED TO DON'T HELP HE WANTED TO BE INDEPENDENT DON'T HE?
I SUPPOSE YOU KNOW THAT ALL WORK AND NO PLAY MAKES JACK A DULL BOY-IT'S A TRUE SAYING BUT IT'S TRUE
WHEN I WAS A YOUNG STEER AND MY DAD WAS LEAD UP FOR SIX MONTHS I WORKED AFTER SCHOOL AND IT DIDN'T HURT ME A MITE
VERY WELL, JOHN STEERING-IF HE GETS ALL RUN-DOWN AND GETS SICK YOU'LL HAVE YOURSELF TO BLAME
JUST FORGET THAT I SAID ANYTHING ABOUT IT.

Examine this table. It shows that $4.46 a month repays everything on a $100 loan in 30 months. The faster you pay, the less the total cost. These payments are calculated at Household's new reduced rates of 2% monthly on balances up to $300 and 6% yearly on balances over $300 to $500. These rates are less than legal maximum, and are the same to everyone—one price to all. Only borrowers sign—no endorsers on any loan. No credit inquiries of friends or relatives.

ADVANCE PACED BY RAILS CUTS MARKET LOSSES

Ground Lost in Profit Taking Regained in Most Instances; Gains Pass 2 Points.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Buyers got behind the stock market today after heavy profit taking of Tuesday's spectacular war boom bulge had knocked down leaders 1 to 4 points.

Rail led the return trip and exchange losses were reduced, cancelled or replaced by gains of 2 or so.

Blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares changed hands in the opening period.

Some of the day's cashing in was attributed to the presidential neutrality proclamation which, if it holds, may cut business for certain companies.

Advances were posted for N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Allied Chemical, Western Union, North American, J. C. Penney, American Can, Texas Corp. and General Electric.

Among losers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Kennecott, de Pont, Goodrich, Douglass Aircraft and International Harvester.

U. S. government securities again skidded and corporate bonds were mixed.

Edging upward in the curb were Electric Bond & Share, Consolidated Copper Mines, American Gas and Standard Steel Spring.

Merchandising issues regained friends on the theory they may have been "oversold" in the face of the recent upswing. Realization the rails would benefit broadly from the rush of foreign purchasers of American goods helped the carriers.

Noted was the survey of "Iron Age" which said the European explosion has had a marked effect on the outlook for the steel industry.

"Steel export departments," the publication added, "have been flooded with cables from all parts of the world seeking supplies here or urging a hastening of shipments of steel previously ordered.

"Steel export prices have been advanced several dollars a ton, in most instances to a parity with domestic prices. Tin plate, for which there has been a sharp demand, has been sold at $6 a ton over recently quoted prices.

lic" for a run on sugar which has depleted their stocks.

Fears of housewives against higher prices should a shortage develop as it did in World war days has resulted in "large purchases" which in the opinion of both wholesalers and retailers is contributing to a condition which they (housewives) were trying to avoid.

Grocers reported yesterday that twice the normal amount of sugar and flour has been sold since last Friday and some stores said their stocks were depleted due to the "abnormal" buying.

Wholesalers however, said there was ample supplies of both sugar and flour on hand to meet the city's needs.

One wholesaler said:

"It is only a panicky public that has caused the shortage. If people would just use their heads, prices needn't go sky high. It is the abnormal demand that creates and already has caused soaring prices."

He pointed out that if people refuse to let themselves get panicky, even prices that have been raised won't stay that way.

"It's hoarding that helps profiteering," he contended.

A survey of the sugar supply of Mansfield made today by the News-Journal showed that wholesalers here have a normal two to three weeks supply on hand.

The survey revealed that jobbers either had on hand or in transit more than 12,000,000 pounds of sugar which they said would care for the normal demand for three weeks. Only one wholesaler reported a shortage.

Refiners who withdrew from the market last Friday at the outset of the war in Europe were beginning to return to the market, it was reported today, although at an increased price.

Some wholesalers today quoted prices of $5.85 per 100 pounds on new shipments, a 35-cent increase per 100 pounds over yesterday.

There were reports from Ohio cities and towns of "war buying" and "sugar shortage." Some retailers were entirely out of sugar and wholesalers said they could not make immediate shipments.

Reports that grocers were "profiteering" by raising prices on many commodities, especially sugar, flour and corn products, were received by the Cincinnati Better Business Bureau.

In Alliance grocers were awaiting a new supply of sugar today after housewives had purchased the city's entire supply. During the "run" yesterday the price was raised from $1.17 to $1.49 on a 25-pound bag.

A Cleveland Heights chain store manager said he had orders to increase prices on 50 commodities today. Included in the list were: flour, up 25 cents a barrel; lard, up 1 cent a pound; sugar, up 16 cents a 100-pound sack; navy beans, up 75 cents a 100 pounds; many canned goods such as sauerkraut, applesauce and tomatoes rose 2 cents a can.

At Canton, Representative James Seccombe in commenting today on reports of rising food prices said:

"It is my impression that there is sufficient legislation on the books to control the situation. I intend to request Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins and Attorney General Frank Murphy to take such steps as necessary to meet the situation.

"It is purely a matter for the executive department of the government if there is not sufficient legislation to enable that department to properly control the matter. I am confident congress will provide such legislation at the earliest possible time."

Bremen's Life Buoys Found on Massachusetts Coast

SEE DISCOVERY CLUE TO 'GHOST SHIP'S' FLIGHT

U. S. Coastguardsmen Indicate $20,000,000 Nazi Liner's Heading for Trouble.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(AP)—The German liner Bremen, whose whereabouts has been a mystery since she sailed from New York last Wednesday, was reported tonight to have arrived safely in an unidentified neutral port, safe from British warships.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — First hint of what may have happened to the ghost ship of the European war—the German luxury liner Bremen—came today when United States coast guardsmen revealed that two of the life buoys of the $20,000,000 vessel had been washed ashore by Massachusetts surf.

The finding of the buoys admitted only a thin stream of light into the dark mystery that has surrounded the Bremen, pride of the German merchant marine, since she slipped out of her berth here Aug. 30.

She carried neither cargo nor passengers. She had undergone one of the most severe examinations that United States authorities ever gave to a foreign vessel in this port. Her hold had been searched for concealed arms. Every inch of her cabin space had been inspected closely.

A coast guardsman reported today that he had found a red cork lifebuoy bearing the word "Bremen" late Wednesday — a few hours after the ship had left New York and before war had been declared in Europe.

He found the buoy a mile from the Orleans, Mass., coast guard station. On Thursday afternoon another of the Bremen's life buoy's was found near the same place.

Courting Trouble.

That would indicate that the Bremen headed north immediately after leaving New York for a fast run up the coast. If so, she was courting trouble.

She was sailing directly into the British cruiser Berwick which steamed southward from Newport, R. I., on Aug. 29. In addition, there were persistent reports that two British destroyers were lurking off Sandy Hook ready to intercept German shipping as soon as war was declared.

An official at the North German-Lloyd docks confirmed today that the Bremen's life buoys were painted red and had the word "Bremen" on them in white.

But he said the whereabouts of the liner was as much a mystery to him as it was to anyone else.

A recent broadcast of a Paris radio station said the Bremen had been seized by the British.

Another rumor was that the ship had headed for Mexico or South America.

HELD TO JURY IN CUTTING SCRAPE

Former Convict Pleads Guilty to Slashing Woman With Knife.

Pleading guilty in municipal court today to a charge of cutting with intent to wound, Albert Walker, 38, colored, 256 North Franklin avenue, was bound over to the grand jury under $1,500 bond. He was returned to the county jail in default of bond.

Walker, who is on parole from Ohio penitentiary, confessed that he slashed Essie Jones, 32, also colored, with a knife following an argument Monday morning.

Walker was paroled recently from the penitentiary after serving three years and eight months for manslaughter in the fatal shooting of Charles Hawkins, colored, during a quarrel.

AUTOIST FINED

Assessed $165 on Charge of Carelessness, $150 Suspended.

Pleading guilty in municipal court yesterday to a charge of careless and reckless driving, Owen ReMaley, 25, of 47 South Diamond street, was fined $165 and costs. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended $150 on condition that he pay the damages to the other automobile involved in a collision last Saturday on Lexington avenue.

ReMaley was arrested by state highway patrolmen after his car collided with a machine driven by C. N. Kerr of Akron.

SHELBY OPENS FAIR TONIGHT

Free Acts to Mark Opening of Annual Event at 8 P. M.; Exhibits Set Record.

SHELBY—Shelby's Community Street fair will open officially at 8 p. m. today when a free act will be presented on the platform on the east side square with Clark L. Beal, general manager of the fair, acting as the master of ceremonies. The exhibits, rides, shows and concessions on the midway will be open earlier in the evening.

The largest number of exhibits ever entered in the fair was assured today with some 1,000 entries in the various divisions. The individual and farm organization displays will again be shown in booths along Main street from the Central school park to the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The exhibits of baked and canned goods and art work will be housed in the First Methodist church basement, while the flower exhibit will be in the Bourgeois sales office on South Gamble street.

Free acts to be given at the official opening will be the Carmines circus of clowns and acrobats. Another free act will follow at the east side platform at 9:30 p. m. when the magician, Galacanda, will appear. Closing the free program for the day will be the skating and slack wire acts at the west square platform at 10:30 p. m.

Some 50 rides, shows and concessions will be located along the midway on Main street, Church street to Second street. Over 15 car loads of farm machinery will be shown on the Central school park during the four-day fair which closes Saturday.

SECOND SELL-OUT ASSURED FOR 'RAINS CAME' PREMIERE FRIDAY

With the Ohio completely sold-out for the Friday night premiere of the picture, Warner Brothers officials anounced yesterday that the picture would also be shown at the Madison the same night, and that all seats at the Madison would be reserved.

Today it seemed likely that the Madison would have to hang up the S. R. O. sign before Friday.

In all, about 3,000 persons are expected to witness the premiere of the $2,500,000 Twentieth Century-Fox spectacle Friday—more, probably, than have ever seen a premiere in Hollywood, since no Hollywood theater holds that many persons.

The Hollywood atmosphere will be given the Mansfield premiere, with spotlights in front of the theater, and downtown stores displaying decorations in keeping with the theme of the picture.

About 250 persons will attend a civic dinner at the Mansfield-Leland hotel preceding the showing of the picture, at which Bromfield will be the guest of honor.

Bromfield today declined an invitation to attend the Hollywood premiere of the picture on Sept. 14, at which tickets will sell for $5.50. The Mansfield premiere prices have not been advanced, as a courtesy to Bromfield's friends and acquaintances throughout the city and county.

VOTERS TO GET SUBWAY ISSUE

Council OK's Legislation to Put Proposed Project on Ballot in November.

SHELBY—Legislation to put a $43,000 bond issue before the voters at the November election for the city's share of the proposed $80,000 West Smiley avenue subway was passed last night by the city council at its regular meeting. The bond issue must have at least 65 per cent of the voters' approval to pass at the election.

Tentative plans for the subway under the West Smiley avenue crossing of the New York Central railroad calls for an increase in expenditures from the first estimate of the city engineer of $50,000 to about $80,000. If constructed under WPA as contemplated, the city will pay slightly less than 55 percent of the cost or $43,000, while WPA will give grants for labor of $36,000. The railroad will give $1,000 in addition to 15 per cent of the total cost which will go on to the city's share of the cost.

Appointment of the junior fireman for the Shelby fire department will not be made until the next regular meeting of city council in two weeks, Mayor D. B. Young told council. The appointment will be made from the eligibility list comprised of Kenneth Hageman, Harley Evans and Bert Elliot.

FUNERAL SET

BUCYRUS — Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the late home, 706 South Walnut street, for Mrs. Dell Aletha Sigler Miller, widow of the late George W. Miller, Farmers and Citizens Bank president, who died at her home Tuesday. Burial will be made in Oakwood cemetery.

Mrs. Miller had been ill for three weeks with a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Miller's marriage took place March 25, 1880. Mr. Miller died in July, 1937. One daughter, Minta Marie, died in 1906.

LEARN OF DEATH

BUCYRUS—Word was received here Tuesday of the death Sunday, Sept. 3, in Spencer, Ind., of J. H. Frey, 64, former Bucyrus baker.

The deceased, who was formerly employed in Bucyrus by the Harmon Miller bakery, left Bucyrus 35 years ago.

Surviving are the widow, one son, John, and a daughter, Mrs. Helen Hancock, all living in Indiana; a sister, Mrs. Sophia Snavely of Bucyrus, and two brothers, J. G. and C. F. Frey, both of Bucyrus.

Funeral services were held Tuesday in Spencer and burial was made there.

FALLS, SUES HOSPITAL

PITTSBURGH —(AP)—Katherine Koncewicz, of Beaver county, Pennsylvania, in a suit filed here, today sought damages of $5,000 from the East Liverpool, O., City hospital for injuries she said were suffered in a fall down the front stairs of the hospital, Nov. 27, 1937.

$35,000 FUND FOR RELIEF SET UP BY COUNCIL

Plan to Pay Off Debts and Raise 'Matching' Funds Given Speedy Okay.

Acting speedily and unanimously on two pieces of legislation, city council last night set up a $35,000 relief fund, contingent upon the approval of the state tax commission.

Two emergency measures, one authorizing a $10,000 appropriation from the city's operating fund and the other seeking permission from the state to issue $25,000 in delinquent tax bonds were approved, the vote on the legislation was 9 to 0.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley explained that the funds were sought to provide the city with funds to match anticipated state money for the balance of the year and pay off the present relief debt.

The legislation which came as a surprise to council was submitted by Kelley who explained that the financing plan had been studied by Mayor Claude M. Hunter and Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist and was "not mentioned" to council's finance committee.

Relief Debt $20,000 Now.

Kelley said the city had an accumulated relief debt of approximately $20,000 and that wholesalers and merchants who had extended credit to the city were asking for payment of the bills.

He said that the issuance of bonds against the delinquent tax receipts would cause a "shrinking up of operating revenues for the next five years," but that he couldn't see "any other way" to raise funds for the purpose.

When Fred Miller, chairman of the finance committee questioned the advisability of the bond request, Kelley pointed out that the legislation provided only for a request for tax commission approval of the plan and would not bind the city to the issuance of the bonds should funds from another source be available.

Kelley told council the funds would take care of the 1939 relief problem providing the state continued to furnish funds on a 50-50 matching basis. He indicated that there was a possibility that the state might cut its share to a smaller margin and that the funds would be limited.

RUNS INTO TRAIN, DIES

ELIZABETH PETRI MARRIED TO R. V. YOCHEM AT GALION TODAY

GALION — Granddaughter of the late J. H. Petri, pioneer Galion business man, industrialist, and loan company organizer, and daughter of Otto G. Petri, of 121

MRS. R. V. YOCHEM

East Church street, Elizabeth Margaret Petri, exchanged marriage vows this morning with Robert V. Yochem, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Yochem of Galion.

The single ring ceremony was read at 9:30 a. m. today at the parsonage of St. Joseph's Catholic church by Rev. Father Louis Hoffman. The only attendants were Virginia McClure, and Ralph Deibig, close friends of the bride and the bridegroom, respectively.

For her marriage, the bride wore a frock of Queen Mary blue with wine colored accessories. A wine colored orchid was worn on her shoulder.

Miss McClure's afternoon dress was of amethyst crepe with which she wore black accessories. Her shoulder corsage was made of gardenias.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served to ten intimate friends and the bride's father, at Bemiller's. Appointments of green and yellow were used.

Mr. and Mrs. Yochem left later for an extensive wedding trip which will take them through the New England states, to resorts in New York state and to Canada, including Quebec. For traveling, the bride wore a black three-piece suit, with silver fox trim on the top coat. Her accessories were black.

In about four weeks, the couple will return to make their home at 121 East Church street.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Yochem were graduated from Galion high school. For the past three years, Mrs. Yochem has been employed at the E. F. Klopp and Company, dry goods store. Mr. Yochem is a salesman for the Ohio Overcoat company.

RITES HELD FOR MRS. ROBERTS

Widow of Crestline Pastor Dies at Home; Funeral Held Today.

CRESTLINE—Funeral services were held today at the Methodist Episcopal church for Mrs. Bertha Roberts, 68, wife of the late Rev. J. C. Roberts, who died Monday afternoon at her home, 359 Clink boulevard.

Rev. C. F. King, pastor of the church was in charge of the service and the sermon was preached by Rev. E. H. Roberts of Columbus, a brother-in-law of the deceased.

The body was taken to Columbus for burial.

Mrs. Roberts had been ill five months, a stroke of apoplexy causing her death.

She was born Oct. 7, 1870 in Greenville, Pa., the daughter of the late Stewart and Crissie Jacobs Cameron. Her marriage to Rev. Roberts was in 1893 and they came to Crestline in 1932 following Rev. Roberts' retirement as pastor of Grandview Methodist church at Columbus, although for nearly twenty years they spent their summers at their farm just east of Crestline in Richland county. Rev. Roberts died Dec. 8, 1937.

Surviving are three children, James C. and Eugene A. Roberts of Akron and Mrs. E. F. Pittenour of Pikeston, Ohio., also six grandchildren.

QUIZ BOY, 14

Police Hold Youth In Theft of Auto Here Sunday Night.

Police were holding a 14-year-old boy for questioning today in connection with the theft Sunday of an automobile which was recovered in a ditch near his home.

Officers said the youth, whom they picked up at Ontario school, was accused of stealing a car owned by Elbert R. Munn, R. D. 4, Mansfield, from Glessner avenue Sunday night and driving it towards his home on Millsborough road.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"Tired?" Roy asked as they drove away together.

"Yes, a little," Elizabeth answered.

"Lean your head against my shoulder," he invited hopefully.

But she would not, and she sat upright, watching the moonlit road with wide open eyes.

"Enjoyed yourself, darling?" Roy inquired presently.

"It was a lovely evening," Elizabeth answered absently; and she drew a quick breath of relief as they turned in at the gates of the long drive.

She glanced back to see if Lawless' car was following, but there was no sign of it.

"We've left them behind," she said, and Roy laughed.

"I expect it's a put-up job," he answered.

They had been indoors for some minutes before the other car arrived.

"It was such a heavenly night," Barbara explained rather self-consciously, "so we didn't hurry." She lowered her voice. "Don't let's wake the parents. Take off your shoes, Elizabeth; the stairs creak so."

Elizabeth obeyed and gathered up the folds of her long skirt.

"Good night, everybody," she whispered.

"I'll be up in a minute," Barbara said.

Elizabeth went slowly upstairs and along the dark corridor to her room. The big house seemed very still and deserted, and when suddenly the mournful howl of a dog broke the silence, she started and put her hand to her heart.

Bingo! She looked fearfully over her shoulder, as if expecting to see the ghostly hound of which Roy had told her following her, and then, with a little shrug, she went on her way, realizing that it was probably only a farmer's dog somewhere out in the night, baying at the moon.

But as she reached her door, she glanced back once again just as Kim Lawless reached the top of the staircase.

They both stood still, with the long, moonlit corridor between them, and it seemed to Elizabeth that she counted each passing second by her heart-beats.

One—two—three. While at the back of her mind she was thinking mechanically, "Why don't I go into my room? Why do I stand here, just looking at him? What's the use? What's the use? What's the use?" Till at last the echoing words seemed to have no sense in them at all.

And then somewhere in the house a clock began to strike the hour.

One, two, three, four—the deep tones went booming through the silence, and each one seemed to take an eternity to die away, as if it were reluctant to mark the passing of yet another wasted moment. And then, up the stairs, Barbara came running in her stockinged feet.

She paused with a hand on the banister rail, looking from Kim to Elizabeth with quick suspicion, though she only said lightly:

"Hullo! Are you two stillmoon-gazing?"

Then, as Elizabeth's power of action returned and, with stiff fingers, she opened her door, Barbara said in a stage whisper:

"Sleep late, if you like. No hurry to get up."

Elizabeth closed the door behind her, and slipping out of her frock, laid it across a chair.

Yes, the hem was quite spoiled—as things always were by clumsy handling.

"My clumsy handling has spoiled things, too," Elizabeth thought dully. And for the first time a doubt crept into her troubled mind.

"Never judge too hastily. Make quite sure first."

That was one of the unforgettable things her darling mother had said in the far-away days gone beyond recall. For an instant, Elizabeth's sensitive face quivered as if pain, long since drugged into numbness, was stirring to life again, and she seemed to see her mother's face, smiling and radiant as it had been before tragedy stalked across her life—and then, by some queer twist of the imagination, Kim Lawless—as he had looked that evening when he said, "I told you once that I loved you."

Odd that though he and her mother had never met, they should seem for the moment to be part and parcel of each other.

"Perhaps it's because I love them both," Elizabeth thought, and her heart was filled with tears which she dared not shed.

She was still in a deep sleep when quite late the following morning Barbara came rapping on the door.

"Betty, are you awake? Betty!"

Elizabeth started up, dazed and bewildered.

"Yes, what is it? Oh, it's you!" She sank back on her pillow as Barbara burst into the room.

"Who do you think has come to lunch?" she demanded, and there was a sort of antagonism in her voice. She jerked back the curtains, and Elizabeth asked in confusion what time it was for Barbara was dressed and had obviously been out.

"Time? It's past 12—but mother said we weren't to disturb you; only when Miss Thornley appeared—"

Elizabeth was wide awake now.

"Aunt Thornley!" she gasped. "Why—what ever—"

Barbara shrugged her shoulders.

"She's brought Penelope too," she explained dryly. "Of course, they couldn't have known that Kim was here, could they? Miss Thornley says they are on their way to Bath and, as they were near, they thought they would call in."

Elizabeth was out of bed and scrambling into her dressing gown. Penelope too!

"I'll get dressed at once. Why didn't you wake me before?" She thrust her feet into little blue bedroom slippers. "Have she and Mr. Lawless met?" she asked falteringly.

Barbara nodded.

"Oh, yes, as cool as you please—just shook hands and said what a lovely day it was. Mother's taken Miss Thornley to see the garden, and I had to leave the others for a moment to come and tell you. Do hurry up."

"I won't be a minute."

Penelope and Kim! Elizabeth's unsteady hands bungled so much with her toilet that it was nearly half an hour before she went downstairs but she could find only Mr. Selby who was calmly reading his paper in the lounge. He looked at her kindly.

"Quite rested?" he asked, and then, as she nodded: "Everyone is in the garden."

"Oh—I'll go and find them."

In the garden! Perhaps Kim had taken Penelope to see the moss grown sundial and the weeping Cupid which crouched at its base.

"Love makes time pass away—Time makes love pass away."

But when she came across them they were standing very quietly side by side admiring the roses, and she heard Penelope say:

"You had some like these in the garden at Shere, didn't you, Kim?"

Shere! It was there that Elizabeth had first met Kim when she had been stealing his primroses.

Wasn't she to be allowed one memory to herself without it being shared by Penelope? She thought, cynically, that this must be how a man's second wife felt—that the woman whose place she had filled was always close by, perhaps looking on with a slightly pitying smile, and thinking: "All this was mine once. It's nothing new. You're only walking in my footsteps."

"Hullo, Penelope!" she said hesitatingly.

Penelope looked at her calmly.

"Hullo. I heard you were in bed. I suppose you have been burning the midnight oil, as usual."

"We were rather late," Elizabeth admitted. She glanced at Lawless and he met her eyes with grim accusation.

"They've asked us to lunch," Penelope was saying. "We were on our way to Bath. Aunt Thornley seems to imagine that the waters will be beneficial." She turned abruptly to the man beside her. "Do you remember that dreary week-end we spent with the Chandlers at Bath?" How thankful we were when Monday morning came?"

"I remember."

"It must be nearly two years ago," Penelope went on. "Almost a lifetime, isn't it?"

How can she! Elizabeth thought with passionate resentment, and she felt as if she were an onlooker, watching while someone deliberately dragged something which was sick and dying into the glaring sunlight.

ELECTRIC COOKING costs 1/2 as much AS YOU THINK

On a New, Modern Westinghouse Electric Range . . . . . .

Out goes the old-fashioned, mistaken notion that electric cooking is expensive. IN comes a new day of greater cleanliness, of less work, of better tasting foods.

Yes, the LOW COST of electric cooking means that you, too, can be as modern in cooking your meals as you are in lighting your house. It's the same idea. Flip a switch for electric light. . . . flip a switch and there's your cooking heat.

Step up to electric cooking . . . . now that it costs so little. Enjoy automatic oven meals that practically cook themselves . . . . give you more time out of the kitchen. Save with simple, thrifty deep-well dinners. Serve tender meats that don't shrink . . . . taste better . . . . because flameless, radiant heat seals the juices in.

Come in today. See our display of 1939 Westinghouse Electric Ranges. And see the electric bills your neighbors pay . . . . final proof that ELECTRIC cooking is LOW-COST cooking.

Neutrality Will End Delivery of U. S. Planes

Nip Profiteering at the Start

DIRECT EFFECT of Europe's war on people of the United States became immediately noticeable yesterday when speculative stock prices shot upward and frantic buying of raw materials got under way in commodity markets.

First local effect of the far-away conflict came to Mansfield in the form of price advances for sugar and flour, with likelihood of a similar trend in other commodities unless quick steps are taken to prevent any except fully justified price hikes.

President Roosevelt apparently had in mind such a situation when he asserted in his Sunday night talk that "no American has the moral right to profiteer at the expense either of his fellow citizens or of the men, women and children who are living and dying in the midst of the war in Europe."

If, in the present situation — with the neutrality of the United States firmly declared—the people of this country are abruptly confronted by materially increased living costs it will seem entirely fair for them to conclude that they are being the victims of deliberately planned profiteering and that it is the duty of federal, state and local government to protect them against such practices.

There may again come a time when, under conditions of actual warfare, the people of the United States will once more be called upon to undergo sacrifices and be subjected to restrictions imposed by war—as was the case in 1917-18—but it is unthinkable that the greed of any individuals, or groups of persons, should now be permitted to impose the penalty of unjustifiably high prices in this country on the pretext of the war in Europe.

It is advisable for citizens to keep in mind, also, that any sudden increase in normal demand for a commodity is quite likely to result in an apparent shortage of supply, which might cause a legitimate price increase. It is suggested, therefore, that buying be done in a normal way without panicky efforts at "hoarding" commodities, as was sometimes practiced during the World war.

In a variety of ways, during the coming days and weeks, the war now in progress in Europe will affect every person in the United States—neutral as we may all hope to remain, as a national policy.

Calmness, and a display of common sense will be urgent needs in meeting changing conditions and in avoiding the flaring passions which might plunge America into a war in which it does not belong.

The past few days have brought noticeable lightening of "Having wonderful time" postcards—and returning vacationers are being recognized behind their coats of tan.

Night Driving More Dangerous

REDUCTION of night speed limits for automobile driving to ten miles below the permissible daytime speed limits is being satisfactorily tried in a number of states and cities where statutes allow such restriction.

In Kansas City, for instance, trial of a temporary 25-mile-an-hour night speed limit was so successful in reducing the number of accidents between sunset and sunrise that the regulation has been made permanent.

The extra hazards of night driving are quite generally realized, but Ohio traffic laws apply alike to day and night speeds and city councils do not have authority to differentiate.

In fact traffic laws are so loosely enforced in Mansfield and elsewhere in Ohio that the 25-mile speed limit on residence streets; 35 on main thoroughfares and 20 in business districts are observed by comparatively few motorists.

Although the Labor day week-end was marked by fewer traffic fatalities than last year, the record is still bad and efforts toward increased highway safety should not be relaxed.

If lower speed for night driving has been effective in cutting accidents in other parts of the country it should be considered for application in Ohio.

Older readers will have confidence that Little Orphan Annie will come through all right—desperate as her present plight may appear.

Some Children Need Shoes

AN APPEAL for shoes and clothing suitable for use by needy children of school age is not likely to go unheeded in Mansfield.

Whatever differences of opinion may exist as to administration of relief, there appears to be quite general agreement that all children should be provided with sufficient food and clothing to make school attendance possible.

The number of instances in which children from poor families have made creditable records in later years is sufficient to justify individual and community interest in every underprivileged boy and girl.

Shoes and clothing which have served their purpose for more fortunate first owners can frequently be made serviceable for other children whose parents cannot afford to outfit them for school.

Mansfield Service League members are now devoting themselves to the specific task of gathering shoes and clothing which can be repaired and made to meet the needs of a number of school children.

This is a worthy service activity which merits aid from all persons who have laid aside children's shoes or clothing that can thus be put to further use.

An "even better" state fair is being promised for next year—which has a strangely familiar sound.

Many Forms of Protection

WHILE practically everyone has realization of the value of life insurance in protecting dependents and assuring an old-age income, comparatively few appreciate the extent to which such insurance can also be used in many other ways.

For example, policies are written to guarantee future education for children. Other policies will guarantee that a home mortgage be paid off, in the event of the wage earner's death. Others have been framed to care for contingencies that may arise from the death of a partner in a business enterprise, or to provide protection against business reverses.

Life insurance has come a long way since it was little else than a protection for dependents.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — The current panic among some of the higher-ranking army officers over the state of national defense isn't shared 100 per cent by others who have a hand in keeping the enemy from our doors.

Maneuvers at Plattsburg and Manassas disclosed, among other things, that the top-ranking reserve and national-guard officers —those from colonel up—aren't especially good. There were exceptions. One reservist general at Manassas, we have been told, did a smart job.

But it was no surprise to the ranks of the army to find this was the case. It is a common joke in the army that fully half the colonels and generals in the reserve would be put to selling Liberty bonds should war start. Some of the others would be told to stay home and take care of the kiddies. Some would be worth a thousand times every dollar of government money spent in training them.

However, nobody expects the early stages of our war to be fought with armies commanded by reserve or even national-guard generals. There are in the regular army a well-known group of upper-bracket officers who will stack up pretty well in a fight. They can compute how much railroad and highway space it takes to move 20,000 men with equipment to a designated spot. They know how to go about getting food there. And if the 20,000 must be expanded to 200,000 quickly they won't be altogether at a loss.

One Thing Has Changed.

THE big difference between the present condition of national defense and the condition in 1917 lies in other directions. Then we had an army completely unacquainted with the problems of dealing with the civilian personnel that makes up the real national defense. That condition has been largely corrected.

A widespread R. O. T. C. organization has been set up in the colleges on a voluntary basis. Regular army instructors have learned how to adopt army methods to civilian dispositions. Out of those college groups, and from other sources, there has been built up a force of 120,000 fairly well-trained reserve officers. That is more than enough for a million men. When the World war started the reserve officer personnel could have been loaded in a freight car—with spare room for four horses.

These reserve officers, in turn, have demonstrated themselves able to train and command civilian soldiers. They have worked with the C. M. T. C. and with the C. C. C.

Potential Soldiers.

AS TO the potential trained man-power, it lies largely in two directions. Since the Citizens Military Training Corps was organized, 350,000 men have received vary amounts of training.

An even greater potential supply is in the 2,500,000 men who have spent time in the Civilian Conservation Corps. Recently there has been a lot of agitation to have C. C. C. men receive military training—for instance, to learn foot drill and gun drill.

We watched C. M. T. C. youngsters at drill this summer. They learned the essentials of foot drill in four days, two hours a day. Teaching them to shoot would take longer—but not so terribly much longer.

Experienced soldiers insist that there is one thing new soldiers lack. They don't know how to take up the outdoor camp life after years in the comfort of their homes. They get that knowledge in C. C. C. camps. They learn group living, how to give and take orders, how to get along without pet foods. It would surprise their mothers how fast they could be made into fighting men.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

IN THE HOLLOW OF HITLER'S HAND!

Listen, World!

It's Up to You to Watch Your Step!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SO YOU SWEAR you'll never do a decent thing again! Lookit what happened when you took in those worthless Joneses, gave them new clothes and furniture and staked them to a new start! And the time you signed a note for your own cousin—and he left you holding the bag! And the way everyone treated you when you tried to befriend that unfortunate acquaintance . . .

Yes, you're certainly fed up with Goodness! Humiliation, ridicule, deliberate misunderstanding and downright double-crossing . . . that's what you've received every time you've tried to do a fine and brave thing!

WELL, WHAT DID YOU EXPECT?

AND WHAT RIGHT HAD YOU TO THINK THAT YOU'D RECEIVE ANY OTHER TREATMENT?

If you've sense enough to appreciate Courage, Kindness, Honesty and Fair Play, you're also hep to the fact that they are mighty rare virtues in this world of ours.

By and large, we're still mostly savages . . . frightened, stupid, malicious savages who fear and hate anything which challenges our cowardice and comfort. Some day we'll be greater. Even now, we have the seeds of greatness in us. But few of us are civilized enough to defy the darkness in ourselves, much less the Incorporated Cussedness of Society at large.

But you defied it, yes? And you felt pretty fine when you did it, didn't you? For a few minutes you had a golden glimpse of what life might be if we all were kind and courageous. Then the glimpse faded . . . for the darkness shut down . . . and the vengeance began. All the other savages whose meanness you had exposed and whose ignorance you had challenged were rushing in to get hunk with you!

They were saying that you weren't really good . . . you were just showing off! You weren't really brave . . . you were simply ruthless! You weren't even kind . . . you were trying to wrangle a profit for yourself!

WELL, SUPPOSE THEY DID —WHAT OF IT?

You knew, beforehand, what you might expect. Suppose you went bamming through a jungle, upsetting all the habits and haunts of the jungle inhabitant? Would you expect the leopards to write you a vote of thanks because you've jeopardized their safety . . . or the boa to kiss your hand . . . or the weasels and vultures and scorpions to decorate you with lei? Not by a long shot . . . YOU'D WATCH YOUR STEP! AND YOU'D HAVE ONLY YOURSELF TO THANK IF YOU DIDN'T!

Then cut out the blubbering and apply the same logic to your present condition. You may not be adventuring in South American or Africa—but you, as surely, crash into a jungle . . . and jeopardize jungle safety . . . when you challenge human meanness and stupidity.

And by the same token, it's up to you to watch your step . . . or take the consequences! The source which gives you the impulse toward nobility also gave you the sense to realize its cost. And it's just your bad luck if you don't!

Goodness is a beautiful and exhilarating experience . . . the finest and most civilized form of human expression. Good — really good—people perform a greater service to the race than the most talented geniuses, the bravest explorers or fighters.

But goodness is also extremely perilous risk. It challenges, humiliates and profoundly riles your weak and erring fellow man. Every time you achieve a great moral triumph you endanger his comfort, expose his weakness . . . and make him hopping mad! Naturally, he's going to get even with you as quickly and completely as possible.

Also, being good is just about the loneliest adventure on Earth . . . an adventure which you cannot expect even your nearest and dearest to share. If they DO share it, well and good. But if they don't, that's just part of the price you must pay, and you're both a sap and a piker if you whimper.

Virtue IS its own reward . . . the richest and lovelist reward on earth. No material profit can equal the joy and pride of rising to your full stature and "swinging it" like a God. BUT DON'T KID YOURSELF THAT THE OTHER FELLOW WON'T NIP YOUR HEEL WHILE YOU'RE SO DOING. FOR HE WILL . . . AND PLENTY!

Timely Editorial

Rickety Autos.

It is really no infringement on the liberty of the people to insist that they drive automobiles that are safe, or none at all. For the right to drive a car is one that must always be diluted with a certain regard for the right of others to be safe from that driver.

If it could be certain that the man who drives a dilapidated old wreck with no brakes or lights would kill only himself, that would make the matter purely one of his own rights. But unfortunately, he almost always kills someone else.

So it is not surprising that 17 states now have compulsory motor vehicle inspection laws, and that 12 other states have permissive laws giving two dozen cities the right to make such inspections. As always, it is the careless ones who have caused this nuisance burden to be placed on careful and careless alike.

But all laws are like that; the offenses of a few place a burden on all.—Newark Advocate.

Health And Diet

Odd Reactions of Physical Allergy

—By DR. CLENDENING

ALLERGY is the term that learned doctors have applied to a condition that suddenly afflicts certain human beings.

Allergy used to be applied to the reaction of the body to chemical objects. There is the well-known allergy to plant pollens resulting in hay fever, and allergy to foods, such as skin hypersensitiveness to strawberries. What is not so well known is the condition that a doctor in my home town of Kansas City, Dr. William W. Duke, first observed and described, and is now known as physical allergy. Physical, of course, means the action of physical elements such as light, heat and cold.

Some examples of this condition are as follows:

A child put his hand in very cold water. The hand became pallid and painful as from chilblains. This occurred often enough that experiments were tried by putting one hand and then the other in cold water. The curious thing was that one hand always became pallid while the other did not change. Treatment by histamine injections was successful.

Summer Asthma.

A woman aged 43 had asthma for many years. Her case puzzled doctors until it was discovered that she had asthma only in the summertime. By putting her in a cold bath, her asthma was immediately relieved. Plainly this case, reported by Swineford and Weinberg, is an example of physical allergy due to heat.

A woman was advised to take light treatments for arthritis. She was cured of her arthritis but was troubled with a violent skin eruption. Nobody understood the nature of this skin eruption until she consulted a doctor who thought that the history of the light treatments suggested the answer. He proved by many tests that ultraviolet light—even at a distance of 25 feet—caused localized eruptions on her skin.

Treatment Difficult.

Treatment is at times even more difficult than diagnosis in these conditions. The mild case may be relieved by the avoidance of the conditions found to be productive of the symptoms. But the highly-allergic person may find it impossible to avoid them. Those who are sensitive to heat and cold extremes of temperature can often be relieved by deliberate exposure to rapid alteration of temperature. The treatment of cold allergy is easier than that of heat allergy.

Curious cases are those in which the heat is brought on by the effort of the body itself. Exercise may cause a rise of temperature and create such internal heat as to produce physical allergy. An actual instance of this kind is of a man who played tennis.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—If you want the lowdown on why revision of the neutrality act is so important to the Allied cause, take a look at the confidential figures of airplanes ordered by France and Britain and so far undelivered.

On the day war broke, Sept. 1, France received delivery of her first big attack bomber from the Douglas company. Another was delivered the next day, Sept. 2, and delivery is promised at the rate of 35 per month. The total order is 100, which means three months before they can all be delivered.

Also on Sept. 1, the Martin company of Baltimore delivered its first attack bomber to France. A total of 215 are ordered, with delivery at 35 a month, which mean six months to finish.

Invocation of the neutrality act will put an end to these deliveries.

Also, France has ordered 200 North American bombing planes of which 116 were completed Aug. 16. The Vought company is manufacturing 40 interceptors or fast pursuit planes for France, largely undelivered, while Curtiss Wright is manufacturing 50 engines with propellers for the British, and 26 for the French.

British airplane shipments are slightly better. Largest order is with the North American company for 400 training planes, of which about 300 have been delivered.

Lockheed also is selling the British 250 reconnaissance planes, for spotting air raiders before they reach London. Cost is $27,000,000, or an average of about $108,000 per plane. About half of them have been delivered.

Total French and British airplane orders placed in this country during the 13 months from July, 1938, when the first British order was sent, to August 26, 1939, was $121,432,419.

War Shots.

NEW nickname for the under secretary of state is "Paul Revere" Welles. On the morning war broke out, he drove from his Maryland home 14 miles to the state department in exactly 18 minutes. It was at 3 a. m. . . . Diplomatic reports from Germany indicate that Hitler has the younger generation emphatically with him, even in Austria. This is not so true of the older generation. But it is the young men who do the fighting. . . . The British embassy in Washington has been worried about wire-tapping. It has examined its telephone wires more than once. . . . When a critic like General "Iron-Pants" Johnson pays tribute to the advance preparation of Roosevelt to cushion the effects of war, then it must be O. K.

Italian Neutrality?

TOO much credit should not be given Benito Mussolini for his announcement that Italy would stay neutral. Rather defenite information was picked up by the French and British, and even by our own people, that this was pretty much pre-arranged by the two Axis bosses.

Hitler's plan always has been to isolate his Polish quarrel as far as possible—in other words, put the squeeze on Warsaw from both the Russian and German sides, making it difficult for the British and French to get to the aid of Poland.

Chief avenue of punishment against Germany has been figured out as the roundabout attack through northern Italy, then up through Austria, which country has no great love for Hitler.

Naturally a neutral Italy would serve to block such an attack. That is why the French and British virtually decided, even before Hitler pounced on Poland, that if Mussolini remained on the sidelines they would give him an ultimatum to make up his mind immediately whether he was with Hitler or against him.

The French and British did some fast behind-the-scenes horse-trading with Mussolini just before the storm broke. And the French actually offered him two worthwhile concessions in Africa: (1) Djibuti, the Red Sea port which forms an outlet for Ethiopia; and (2) the straightening of the Tunis frontier in favor of Italy. This meant ceding almost half of Tunis to Italy —an area largely sand dunes, yet politically an important concession.

However, the concession came too late. Mussolini, as far as the Allies could ascertain, appeared to be bound hand and foot, perhaps helplessly stuck to his Axis partner.

Domestic Wars.

THE National Labor Relations Board is in a turbulent "world war" of its own, with William Leiserson, recently appointed member, at loggerheads with Chairman Madden and Commissioner Ed Smith. Leiserson, who claims he was instructed by Roosevelt to "clean up the mess," is after the scalp of certain subordinate officials, with Madden and Smith refusing to oust them.

Both sides are bombarding each other with hot memorandums, which will provide juicy reading for the house investigating committee when it finds them in the files! . . . First problem laid in the lap of young Lawrence Fly when he became chairman of the Federal Communications Commission was a complaint by the Unitarian Fellows for Social Justice against Station WJR of Detroit, charging it canceled a broadcast by Rev. Walton E. Cole replying to Father Coughlin.

Leo Fitzpatrick, manager of WJR, admitted that the gag was clamped on because of Cole's reference to the radio priest. . . . The executive committee of The Associated Farmer, western vigilante organization soon to be probed by the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee, is planning a vigorous drive to suppress John Steinbeck's best-selling "Grapes of Wrath."

First Day of School

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

SHE is a six-year-old with character and she made a pleasant picture as she climbed aboard the orange school bus along our country road this morning. Her eyes are blue, her face is round and tanned, there is a winsome dimple in her chin, her short blond pigtails stand straight out on each side of the white part down the back of her head. Her smile takes in the bus driver and the whole wide world. Her dinner pail is very shiny, her box of new crayons much in evidence.

From the window, as the bus rolls on, she waved her hand hard to the mother who watched from the door of their little home.

All summer she has romped about her father's farm, full of childish business . . . filling an old baking powder can with angle worms, catching fireflies in the evening, climbing trees, or wading the stream that trickles through the valley.

"Keep quiet, please," she told her older sisters from her bed one night, "I want to listen to the night birds talk." She is not afraid of the dark; she loves the rain; she hobnobs with every living wild thing out of doors.

We could not help but smile this morning at her toothy grin, her stubby braids, and her stocky brown legs in their short bright socks, but without her the first day of school would lack in meaning, and this country's future would be blank indeed. She is positive, and healthy and courageous. She can take it on the chin like a boy.

It is not hard to imagine her, a woman grown, carrying on the nation's homelife of the future . . . rearing sons and daughters to people the world that lies ahead. We look and love her, even while we smile. We who can watch her kind start to school are fortunate.

Then, with a sigh for what we hope the school may mean to her, we turn back to our chores, while the orange bus disappears down the road in a cloud of dust.

CENSORS SLOW UP NEWS FLOW FROM CAPITALS

Elaborate Set-Ups Disturbed by Supervision; Alternate Routes Are Employed.

(By Associated Press)

War news comes again to the United States through the filtering meshes of military censors.

In London there is strict censorship, examination of news dispatches slowing the movement over cables that had become almost instantaneous.

In Berlin, Warsaw, Moscow, Rome and Paris there is a "censorship of responsibility." A correspondent is held answerable for what he sends. Some correspondents have been expelled from a country for sending news considered by that government untrue or too critical.

Elaborate European news gathering systems were disturbed when censors suddenly appeared in London communication offices Thursday evening. Newspapermen turned to their prepared plans for keeping readers informed.

Associated Press bureaus in Europe's capitals last Thursday night resumed war-time methods of routing their news. They sent dispatches direct to New York, sometimes simultaneously by telephone, cable and wireless.

The British censorship was new and for two hours not a word was allowed to pass. When the slow machine began moving dispatches from London were delayed by censors as much as five hours.

London, once the center of quick telephone, cable and wireless relays, now is among the slowest to send its news.

Berlin communications have suffered little in efficiency but have been limited by British interruption of news telephone lines.

It still would be possible to centralize Europe's news in London for coordination but since dispatches would pass through British censorship and also suffer delay, all Associated Press bureaus send their news directly to New York.

Sometimes news goes by roundabout ways to get to the United States. Warsaw occasionally has telephoned news to Budapest, whence it was telephoned to Amsterdam, then cabled to New York. Occasionally Copenhagen has been a relay point. At the same time the same dispatches were cabled or wirelessed by a direct route in the hope one at least would make speed.

When war became a possibility the Associated Press had only to move a few men mainly to reinforce two neutral centers, Amsterdam and Copenhagen, where traffic relay offices were established to forward news from bureaus on alternative cable or wireless lines and to tell better the story of how the little nations were trying to stay out of war.

London, Berlin, Rome, Paris, Moscow, Budapest, Madrid, Lisbon and Warsaw were in a smooth machine of communications Thursday until evening. When British censors took possession of cable, telephone, telegraph and wireless offices, each of those bureaus had to function much as a separate unit, sending their dispatches by different lines.

One hardship was the lack of communication among bureaus because European headquarters in London could not talk with them. Messages between nearby Paris and London or London and Berlin were exchanged through New York. Two bureaus often sent exactly the same news and occasionally each duplicated by different cables so that four stories arrived in New York instead of the one that would have sufficed. Such waste was necessary at times although it tended to clog the European wires and the Atlantic cables.

Quickly it was seen that one route was faster than another and soon the human news machine began working at top speed. Hours of delay were cut to minutes and Sunday a news story of the British declaration of war was written, passed through the British censorship, transmitted on a cable and distributed on the Associated Press leased wire system within four minutes. Ordinarily, however, one minute usually is required to handle such big news.

Poles Rush in to Stem Advance of Germans

Polish Town After German Bombardment

The effect of high explosive German air bombs is graphically illustrated in this picture, made "somewhere in Poland" and flashed by radio to New York. Polish dead and injured in air raids run into the thousands, according to Polish news sources.

PARIS WAITS FOR BOMBS OR BURST OF DAWN

Thousands Lay Sleepless With Fears German Bombers Might Invade.

By JOHN LLOYD
(AP Staff Correspondent)

PARIS—(AP)—The first nights of war are sleepless ones for thousands of Parisians who fear German bombers will strike at once at the capital, John Martin of the Associated Press Paris staff said today in a broadcast.

"I could not sleep, nor could a great many others, I found out later," Martin related. "Everybody was waiting, waiting for the German air force to strike at Paris, to lay its tons of explosive eggs on this city.

"One has the windows closed, the curtains tight, or black paper pasted over the panes. You think you hear a sound, you switch off the lights, open the window and lean out. Nothing—nothing at all, except high-heeled slippers cracking down the sidewalk at 1 o'clock in the morning.

"You go back in your shell, close the window, turn on the radio. Out it comes, propaganda pitched in all keys, German, French, English, Italian. Off go the lights, back to the window. A bright moon with a few clouds makes you mutter, 'A perfect night for bombing.'

"The streets are deserted. A policeman—gas mask, steel helmet and all—stands in a narrow pool of light shed from the precautionary lights with which Paris is now equipped. He is all ears and all eyes. When he sees light escaping from behind an ill-fitting curtain he goes off to tell the householder about it.

"Tonight and the next night will be like that, or worse. They say after the first ones you relax somewhat. It is just the waiting that gets you, even though you know there are French signal stations at the border waiting to flash warnings direct to Paris. Dawn is a relief.

"Not far from Paris, before they had to requisition most vehicles for this new war, yon could take a ride out to Belleau Wood and see part of the last war. German cannon still stand crazily with their muzzles lifted toward Paris. The Americans captured them and left them there. Rusty machine-guns clutter the ground. Trenches zig-zag through the woods. Piles ot shrapnel are stacked neatly. The French, with pride, say the Germans will never get that close to Paris again."

FIREMEN CONTINUE ON 84-HOUR WORK WEEK DESPITE NEW LAW

Although a new Ohio law restricting firemen from working more than 72 hours a week went into effect today, Mansfield firemen will continue to work their regular 84-hour week.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger said that his department would cooperate with the city administration during the next four months until the annual appropriations bill is drafted when it is hoped that the personnel will be increased.

Lack of finances in the city treasury for employing four additional men needed to invoke the shorter work week caused council several weeks ago to seek the cooperation of the department in continuing on the present basis at least until the 1940 appropriations bill is drafted early next year.

Seeburger in his 1940 budget request two months ago asked for eight additional firemen, four of which he said were needed to man the department when the reduced work week would become effective.

Council's finance committee however, cut the request to this year's figures when they drafted the 1940 budget, explaining that some consideration might be given the request for additional men when the appropriation bill is drafted next year.

TAX RECEIPTS PASS $500,000

Collection Period's Closed But Payments Continue to Arrive.

Although Richland county real estate tax books closed five days ago, receipts continued to pour in today by mail and collections mounted to $501,914.

County Treasurer John E. Kolb said the collection for the last half of the year will be better than it appears now when all of the mail returned are in and the collectors in county villages have reported.

Receipts to date are about $73,000 below the half year charge of $575,000. Receipts so far this year amount to $1,142,000. More than $125,000 was collected during the past week.

INFORMAL CEREMONY PERFORMED TUESDAY

Miss Virginia Leight and George S. Call Exchange Nuptial Vows; Couple Will Make Home In Tiffin Following Wedding Trip.

ATTIRED in a brown costume suit trimmed in cross fox, Miss Virginia Louise Leight walked up the aisle of the Grace Episcopal church at 11 o'clock yesterday morning on the arm of her father to become the bride of George S. Call, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dana Call, Norwalk. Rev. Milton G. Nicola read the simple ceremony before a gladioli banked altar.

Miss Leight, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leight, 644 Arlington avenue, was attended by her sister, Mrs. George Leistensnider, Somerville, N. J. The attendant was attired in a plum crepe dress with brown accessories, and a corsage of gardenias. Miss Leight wore two orchids, and a gold bracelet which had belonged to her grandmother. Norman Call, Norwalk, was best man.

The bride's mother was attired in blue lace with black accessories, and Mrs. Call wore black crepe with matching accessories. Both women had gardenia corsages.

A reception for 24 guests followed at the Women's Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Call left early yesterday afternoon for a wedding trip through the Smoky Mountains, and upon their return to Ohio they will make their home at 109½ Frost parkway, Tiffin, where Mr. Call is employed as assistant manager of the City Loan and Savings company.

The bride attended Mansfield Senior high school, and has been employed here as a stenographer in the City Loan company office. She is a member of Delta Theta chapter of Delta Theta Tau. Mr. Call attended the Norwalk high school.

Out-of-town guests present for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Jay Call, Norwalk, Mr. and Mrs. Harlo McNally, and Thomas Stringer, Elyria, and Mr. and Mrs. George Leistensnider and children, George and Jean, Somerville, N. J.

Mrs. Costick Has Afternoon Party

Mrs. John Costick entertained with a miscellaneous shower in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Matthes Monday afternoon at her home, 117 Raleigh avenue. Mrs. Matthes was Miss Jeannette Costick before her marriage last winter.

The 12 guests in attendance spent the afternoon socially. Later refreshments were served, buffet style, from a table decorated with green and white appointments and centered with a wedding cake.

Mrs. Costick presented her daughter with a silver service in honor of the occasion. Mrs. Stanley Leja, an aunt of the honoree from Pittsburgh, Pa., was in attendance at the party.

Announce Engagement of Mildred McElvain

Following the announcement of her engagement at a private party last week, Miss Mildred McElvain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McElvain, Olivesburg road, publicly revealed her coming marriage to William Robert Ferris, Ft. Thomas, Ky.

Mr. Ferris is the son of Mrs. George Hines, 114 North Walnut street. The ceremony will be performed Nov. 4 at the bride-elect's home. Miss McElvain attended Madison high school.

Couple Exchange Vows In Kentucky Ceremony

Miss Mary Sableski, 155 Harker street, became the bride of Albert Thoma, 446 Louise avenue, in a quiet ceremony Saturday at Covington, Ky. The couple was unattended. Miss Sableski wore a slate blue dress with matching accessories for her marriage.

Following a short wedding trip the couple will be at home at 368 Springmill street. Both Mr. and Mrs. Thoma are employed at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

NOW that the weather has cooled off a little, this would seem to be an ideal day to talk about fur coats. . . . Most all the downtown stores are showing them, and the styles are so attractive that it's really hard to resist the temptation of buying one. . . . Popular furs this season are persian lamb, leopard cat, safari seal, kidskin, caracul and squirrel. . . . More than 50 per cent of these are cut along swagger lines, although a few fitted princess models are featured. . . . Red fox and silver fox jackets in bolero, three-quarter and full length styles are also important for fall fur wear.

Marianne

But perhaps you're more interested in a cloth coat. . . . Sport models for fall are nearly all swagger styles in bright colored tweeds or plain lustertones. . . . Fitted coats come in black with silver fox or mink trim leading the parade of dressy styles, followed by moss green, dubonnet and light tan. . . . The ever popular camelshair coats are again very much in evidence for fall and winter wear—swagger and fitted styles seem to be sharing the honors.

To diverge from coats just a little, let's step over and look at evening wraps. . . . Of course fur jackets are always good, and black velvet is as stylish as ever. . . . About the most attractive one I've ever seen combines black and red velvet—it's reversible and can be worn black or red side out as you prefer—oh yes, and it has a hood, as they nearly all do this season. . . . Another style in silk lined black velvet, uses white bunny fur piping on the hood.

AND if you're looking for something especially smart to wear under that new wrap, I saw a formal downtown yesterday that will really take your breath away. . . . The cloth looks almost as though it had been dipped in gold as golden highlights shine through the soft multi-colored check of the gown, which combines a form-fitting bodice, single shoulder straps and a very full skirt. This stylish dress is topped with a brief dubonnet velvet jacket that has collar and cuffs to match the dress and a zipper front closing.

ACCORDING to all the styles now in evidence, it would seem that shoes will be shoes again this fall—and when you slip your feet into them you'll really be feeling "shoe" instead of wide open spaces! And for further comfort this fall, milady, you can step down off those stilts for a change, as shoe designers have introduced some smart new low heels—such as "mid-hi," college and "half-hite" heels. . . . Other new notes are the quaint gaiter styles (inspired by grandma's old-time "spat shoes") which are built high over the instep. . . . V-throat pumps and sophisticated high-lacing ties will also prove popular because of their flattering lines to the ankle. . . . The new sultana toe, used in some of the fall shoes, has been designed to give you the freedom of an open-toe shoe because it is broader and turned-up to give more breathing space—and then there are square toes and bulldog toes that will do this too. The color question for fall shoes is not a difficult one either—black leads by a wide margin, with a new deep brown coming in second. . . . And a few styles are being shown in claret, a rich wine shade.

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

C. L. of C. Members Have Bridge Session

There were 10 tables of bridge and five hundred in play last evening when members of the C. L. of C. met for a social session at the club rooms in the Bird building. Mrs. Frank Westrick was chairlady for the evening, and the rooms were decorated with bouquets of garden flowers.

Prizes in the five hundred games were won by Mrs. N. P. DeWees and Mrs. Henry Kurtzman. Mrs. H. A. Kampf, Mrs. Nell Dillon and Mrs. John Shill were awarded prizes for high bridge scores. On Sept. 19, members of the organization will meet for a business session in the club rooms.

Alpha Pi Sigma Will Have Roast Sept. 19

Arrangements for a wiener roast to be held at Devil's Punch Bowl were made last night when members of Alpha Pi Sigma were entertained at the Mansfield-Leland hotel with Mrs. Charles White and Mrs. Charles Wilkinson serving as hostesses. Members of the committee for the roast, which will be held Sept. 19, are Mrs. Ralph Andregg, Miss Lucille Antrican, Mrs. Raymond Beal and Miss Phyllis Brown.

Tentative plans were discussed for the Founder's Day dinner which will be held Oct. 17. Mrs. Donald Snyder will be the chairman on arrangements. Bridge was played at the close of the business session, and Miss Ann Menrath and Miss Isabel Gerstmeyer were the winners.

Attired in her wedding gown is Mrs. Henry Arthur Schmahl, above, who was Miss Florence Lucille Hardy before her marriage at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the Gospel Tabernacle. Mrs. Schmahl and her husband will be at home early next week at 382 Second avenue following a trip through Michigan.

Mansfield Girl Becomes Bride of James C. Cox, Delaware

ANNOUNCEMENT was received today of the marriage last Saturday of Miss Elizabeth Russ, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emerick Russ, 11 Hoffer street, and James C. Cox of Delaware. Rev. L. E. Rush performed the wedding ceremony at the Mt. Gilead Methodist church at 2:30 p. m.

The bride was attired in a blue crepe afternoon frock with black accessories and a gardenia shoulder corsage for her wedding. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Mary Russ, who wore a wine crepe dress with matching accessories and a corsage of roses for the occasion. Mr. Cox, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cox of Delaware, chose Harold Bills of Delaware to be his best man.

Following the ceremony a reception for 25 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents. Refreshments were served at one long table, centered with a wedding cake and decorated with yellow and white appointments.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox are now residing at 18 Ann street in Delaware, where he is employed at the Sun Ray Stove company. Before her marriage, Mrs. Cox, a graduate of St. Peter's high school, was an employe of the North American Knitting Mills. Mr. Cox was graduated from Willis high school in Delaware.

PLAN SESSION.

Members of Circle Four of the First Presbyterian church will meet tomorrow at the church for a 1:30 p. m. dessert-luncheon, Mrs. George Fox, chairman, announced today.

BRIDGE-LUNCHEON SET FOR FEDERATION

Strickland Gillilan Scheduled as First Guest Speaker; Lindley Smith, Mrs. Lodde and Mrs. Wilson Will Appear.

THE OPENING GUN will sound a week from Thursday for members of the Mansfield Federation of Women when they begin one of the most elaborate programs of study and entertainment ever to be presented in the city. The first event will be a luncheon-bridge at 1 o'clock Sept. 14 at the Women's Club with Mrs. W. H. Burleson serving as hostess.

When the directors give a tea Oct. 6 they will present Lindley M. Smith, who is scheduled to present a dramatic program. The first lecture luncheon of the season will be Oct. 17 at 11 a. m. with Strickland Gillilan, humorist, as guest speaker.

On Nov. 9 a similar affair will be conducted with Avis Clamitz Shulman speaking on "Books and the World Outlook." The second bridge-luncheon of the season will be given Dec. 7, and the first meeting of the new year will be Jan. 5. Mrs. V. H. Lodde will review a play at the federation meeting and tea.

Paula LeCler will speak on "What They Told Me" at a lecture luncheon on Feb. 15, and Dr. James Marshall will talk on "Modern Australia", March 5.

The concluding luncheon-bridge affairs will take place March 28 and April 18 with the annual meeting and tea coming on April 2. Mrs. J. C. Wilson will present a play at this function.

Officers of the Federation for the coming year are Mrs. Lester Redding, president; Mrs. Paul W. Bovard, first vice-president; Mrs. Charles L. Shafer, second vice-president; Mrs. Edith Martien, treasurer; Mrs. G. J. Searle, recording secretary; and Miss Florence Wagner, corresponding secretary.

Members of the board are Mrs. Rex Averill, Mrs. Scott Coffin, Mrs. H. L. Creveling, Mrs. J. E. Gibson, Mrs. E. J. Gilbert, Mrs. Avery Hand, Mrs. Anna Knote, Mrs. William Layton, Mrs. Elmer Post, Mrs. A. L. Price, Mrs. C. F. Routzahn, Mrs. C. O. Russell, Mrs. J. L. Stevens, Mrs. P. E. Sturges, and Mrs. William M. Remaining committees are Mrs Knote, scholarship; Mrs. Gibson west wing; Mrs. Creveling and Mrs. Knote, constitution; Mrs. Sturges and Mrs. Routzahn, decorating and furnishing; Mrs. Weldon and Mrs. Coffin, tea room; Mrs. Layton, publicity.

Church Classes Conduct Regular Monthly Sessions

Two of the city's church organizations gathered yesterday for regular monthly meetings. Members of the Rain and Shine class of the South Main Street Evangelical church met at the parlors with 35 present for the business meeting conducted by Mrs. C. M. Hunter. Mrs. J. H. Dir led the devotions, and Rev. C. L. Kern led in prayer and gave a talk.

Letters were read from Mrs. W. E. McGuire, former member, and Mrs. T. T. Hass, former teacher who now resides in Wooster. Mrs. Hass invited the class to her home for a picnic Sept. 14. Luncheon was served by Mrs. R. C. Bower, Mrs. Donna Schuler, Mrs. P. F. Smith, Mrs. Charles Osbun, Mrs. H. E. Rinehart, Mrs. Rhoda Roberts, and Mrs. Hunter. The next meeting will be a covered-dish dinner and Pollyanna party Oct. 3 at the church.

Class Thirteen of the First Lutheran church assembled in the parish house with Mrs. Birdie Finney in charge of the devotions and business meeting. A duet was sung by Mrs. E. W. McCready and Mrs. Alice Pifer, and Mrs. S. E. Balliet gave a reading. During the social hour refreshments were served to the 14 present by Mrs. Jerry Rusk, Mrs. J. S. Barber, and Miss Jennie Hoffman.

Plan Farewell Dance At Alumni Group Gathering

Final plans for the college farewell dance sponsored by the St. Peter's Alumni association were made last night when the unit met at the church hall. The affair will be held tomorrow night at the American Legion hall with Harold Duda's orchestra furnishing the music.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilkinson are the chaperones, and arrangements are in charge of John Osgar, John Bishop, Ralph Bishop and Howard Lee.

Girls Want Education For Charm

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

American girls are preparing to strike, it seems. They want more education. Don't misunderstand me. They are not demanding more algebra problems or more lessons in history. They're asking to be fitted for life.

Somebody discovered recently that hundreds, even thousands of girls who had had the best of schooling were worried and resentful because they weren't able to solve their daily problems. They hadn't been taught the right things. Some of these girls were married. Some weren't. Some had jobs. Some didn't. But the same wail went up from all of them.

"Let's look into this," said the president of a well-known girls' college in the middle west. So he got busy. And he tells all about it in the current number of a woman's magazine.

Three hundred girls and young married women were asked to keep diaries, telling all about those troubles of theirs. They did so. The result may be that education for girls may revert in some degree to what it was in great-grandmother's day.

Lesson-books in the regulation subjects aren't enough. We want to count as human beings, they say. We want to be considered charming women. Isn't that what's going to determine whether our lives are a success or not?

For instance, we want beautiful voices and correct ways of speaking. We want to know how to carry ourselves and how to walk well. We want perfect complexions and healthy hair and we want to know the art of dressing ourselves. We think it's our right to have this sort of education.

Not for a moment can these demands be dismissed as frivolous. They are fundamental. To succeed, whether as a wife and mother or in a career outside the home, a girl must have confidence in herself. And she cannot gain this confidence unless she knows that she has made the most not only of her mental abilities but of her physical self and of her manner.

But this isn't the whole story. There are other things that these girls, who consider themselves under-educated, demand also.

They need to know about budgeting, especially the married ones. They don't want to waste their husbands' money, or their own. Then, they'd like to know the elementary principles of business. You'd be surprised to know how often young women are embarrassed for lack of this knowledge.

Then, they are too ignorant about foods, they say, and ways of preparing them. How can they choose the best diet for their families?

As for marriage itself and motherhood, they feel, especially the conscientious ones, that a lot of knowledge is available and that somebody might have taken the trouble to pass it on to them.

This is going back, perhaps, to the old-fashioned idea of what girls need to know. Before women's colleges were ever thought of girls were taught as a matter of course how to look charming, how to make themselves attractive to men, how to practice all the many arts of a household. Was there something in the old idea, after all?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Sept. 7.

Rather dubious astral conditions prevail on this day, judging by lunar and mutual aspects. There are signs of trickery, snares, intrigues and pitfalls generally, and since large interests may be at stake and important personages involved, it would be well to be keenly vigilant. With steady and dependable moves, danger may be sidestepped.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which their own keen and dependable minds and sound judgment may be their salvation from snares, schemes, intrigues and sinister machinations which hold a menace.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Princess Olina's words and tone were apparently the lightest of banter, but to my imagination—always too lively—they seemed to hold a distinct challenge.

That Mary interpreted it in the same way I knew by a stiffening of her body, imperceptible to anyone who does not know her as well as I do, and by a faint edge to her silvery voice. But her words were as light as Olina's.

"That's because I didn't have him under my eye constantly," she retorted. "If I'd been riding herd on him, you can wager he wouldn't have gotten himself battered up this way. But he's walking a chalk mark now, aren't you, Darling?"

Noel Slights Olina.

"Am I ever?" he retorted, and I noticed with malicious satisfaction that, after the first cursory glance compelled by her greeting, he did not look at Olina at all. Every bit of his attention was focused on his young wife, and his eyes were eloquent with love and admiration for her.

But Olina was persistent, maliciously so, I told myself, perhaps unjustly. But both her words and her manner irritated me.

"Don't you need some help in making the chalk lines?" she asked sweetly. "If you do, remember I'm perhaps the best chalk artist in the country."

"Thank you loads," Mary replied sweetly. "I'm sure glad to know that. And you can wager I'll send out an S. O. S. if I need one."

"And now, Auntie Madge, where am I to park this unruly husband of mine? I think he ought to get into bed and rest for awhile; don't you, Miss Whitlock?"

Situation Is Strained.

It was a distinct dismissal of Olina, delicate but effective, and the princess could not quite control the sudden rush of color to her face—pure rage—I guessed. But she slid out of the strained situation with gracious aplomb.

"I'll be up with Maman if you want me," she said. "She asked me to make her excuses to you all, as she doesn't feel quite up to seeing anyone this morning."

She turned to Lillian, to my father and to Philip Veritzen with courteous greeting, while Miss Whitlock and I went into action in answer to Mary's question.

"I'll give you two your Uncle Dicky's big room," I told them. "Our guests have your old one. There is also a small bedroom nearby for Miss Whitlock. I'll take you right up."

"The Chief" Needs a Nurse.

"You'll do no such thing," she said stoutly. "Miss Whitlock and I can perfectly well find our way around, and your job is to see to Grandpa Spencer. He needs a nurse worse than Noel does."

She lowered her voice to a murmur at the last words, and my answer was also inaudible except to her.

"He's going to have one as soon as I can get him into his own suite," I told her. "Miss Whitlock, will you be in readiness to come over when I shall call you?"

"At any moment," she responded competently and cheerily. Then she followed Noel and Mary out into the hall and up the stairs, while I turned to my father. But it was Philip Veritzen who claimed my attention first.

"I think I will go over to my hotel now," he said, "if you are sure you do not need me. I have assured myself that Noel is getting the best of care, and Queen Olga is not receiving this morning, so I think I am best out of the way."

"You couldn't be in the way," I told him perfunctorily, but secretly I was glad of his decision.

Veritzen Offers Help.

"You will be sure to let me know if there is anything I can do," he said, bowing low over my hand.

"Of course," I told him, smiling brightly. "It is a great comfort to know you are so near."

"Remember, I am at your service always," he said, and bowed himself out.

Released at last, I rushed to the side of my father, who was leaning back in a big chair, his eyes closed, with Lillian watching him solicitously.

"Is he all right?" My lips framed the sentence, but no word came from them, and Lillian, who has practiced lip-reading with me occasionally, gave me an affirmative nod.

"Only tired," she signaled back. "Speak to him!"

I bent over him, and took one of his pitifully thin hands in mine.

"Father, dear!" I said. "Won't you go to your rooms now and rest awhile? I can take care of you much better up there."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE BACKWARD SQUEEZE

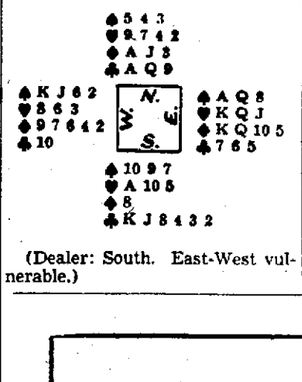
IF PLAYERS understood it as well, the backward squeeze should be executed almost twice as often as the forward squeeze. The position is no more complex, and it has the advantage that it will work against either the opponent on the right or the one to the left in case either of those unhappy worthies has to try to guard two crucial suits unaided by his partner.

The forward squeeze requires ability to make the important opponent discard before you do, whereas with the backward squeeze you don't care whether he discards before or after.

You have him in either event, because your own discard does no harm to you.

With an inexperienced partner, South on this deal was straining to get into No Trump games played by himself by any conceivable device. Imagine his opening this with 1-No Trump. When North leaped to 3-No Trumps and East doubled, South was afraid to try to show his clubs, so accepted the weight put on him.

After the opponents peeled off four spade tricks, a heart was led to the J and A. South counted up and saw he needed a squeeze, with no other possible play. So he ran all his clubs. As he played the last one, he also had left the heart 10 and diamond 8. In dummy he had three diamonds, one of which he discarded harmlessly on the last club.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

Now what could East do? If he discarded his heart K, declarer would cash the heart 10 and then take in the diamond A. If East tossed away from his diamond K-Q, the declarer could cash the diamond A and rake in the now good J.

The reason this play works against either opponent is that the single threat card is in the same hand as the squeezing card.

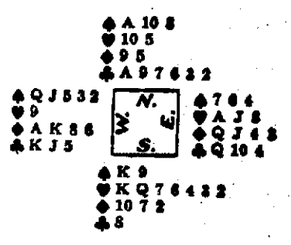
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If the opponents cash two diamonds and the heart A, then lead another heart, how should declarer play for 4-Hearts?

TOLD SPONSORS MUST HIKE ANTE ON WPA WORK

City, County Officials Hear of New Law Calling for 25 Per Cent Contributions.

Sponsors of WPA projects must provide an average of 25 per cent of the total cost of the project under a new law effective the first of the year, city and county officials were told yesterday at a meeting at the courthouse.

Under the present financing schedule, the sponsor is required to furnish from 15 to 20 per cent of the cost of the project, mostly in materials and equipment.

The new ruling, designed to place more of the burden of public works expense on the local governing unit, was explained to the city and county representatives by L. B. Peyton, Columbus, director of operations for WPA in the Sixth district which includes Richland county.

Urges 1940 Program.

Peyton urged the sub-divisions to set up their WPA programs for the first six months of 1940 and submit it to the district office to give WPA authorities an idea of the amount that will be needed for projects in that period.

Attending the conference which was held in the county commissioners' office were Mayor Claude M. Hunter, Service-Safety Director Earl Nist, Mayor D. E. Young of Shelby, County Engineer Howard C. Sword, L. L. Rinehart, president of the county board of education, and the commissioners, C. L. Mitchell, Ray Hout and Guy Stewart.

'CRASHES' TESTS

Unauthorized Student High In Police Exams.

HOUSTON, Tex.—(U.P.)—It doesn't look like they are going to be able to keep 28-year-old Peter Paul Chwasteh, who "crashed" a recent police school and graduated with honors, from being a patrolman.

Seventy-six rookies were registered at the training school conducted by the Houston police department. One registrant failed to appear and Chwastek's presence was not discovered until the course was half over and he was high up on the list of students.

The directors decided that the ambitious youngster ought to be allowed to continue his course, and his name was placed on the eligible list from which future patrolmen will be chosen.

ERRS AT LUNCH

BURLINGTON, Vt. — (U.P.) — A policeman was suspended for "going out to lunch without leaving a forwarding address." Whether this meant he forgot to punch the timeclock was not recorded.

"No more chilling since Tripl-ife put in"

$2 A WEEK Will Buy A Williamson Tripl-ife

"The Williamson Heater Company:
Since we have installed your Williamson Tripl-ife Furnace, we have had no more trouble with chilling as we walk from one room to another. We have had to fire less often and have burned approximately two tons less coal than before. Due to even heat, less work and cheaper fuel, our lives have been made more comfortable with the added pleasures not enjoyed before."

JUST BECAUSE IT'S FUN!

Get in your car this week-end, and drive. Not because you've some place to go, not because there's an errand to do . . . but just because it's so much fun! For there's a new kind of gasoline that makes driving a sport again. It brings a faint blue horizon rushing up to meet you . . . sky-piercing hills level out gently under its surging power . . . it makes the broad highway slip silently behind you and fade like a dream. It's SOHIO SUPREME . . . a new experience, a new thrill, a new pleasure. Discover it . . . soon!

Because SOHIO SUPREME so greatly exceeds the minimum specifications for an "Ethyl" gasoline, we have discontinued the sale of SOHIO Ethyl.

We have kept the advantages of Ethyl fluid, and developed in SOHIO SUPREME a motor fuel that is higher in anti-knock, with a better balance of acceleration and power, than any gasoline we have ever before produced for automobile engines. Regardless of the car you drive, we believe the superior qualities of this modern gasoline will be evident with your very first tankful—which you can get today at no increase over the usual price for premium fuels.
